Ford Orders Disclosure

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, reversing administration policy, ordered the Commerce Department on Thursday to begin disclosing which U.S. companies are asked by Arab countries to participate in a boycott against Israel.

However, Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson said the order only applies to requests from Arab countries made Thursday or later. If a company has already filed reports with the government saying it was participating or was asked to take part in the boycott, this information will not be made public.

In his debate Wednesday, Ford had led many viewers to think that past reports would be made public.

"Because the Congress failed to act, I am going to announce tomorrow that the Department of Commerce will disclose those companies that have participated in the Arab boycott. This is something thatwe can do. The Congress failed to do it, and we intend to do it."

Commerce Department spokesman Horace S. Webb said he could see that some people might have interpreted the remarks as indicating past reports would be made public. But he said it could be read to apply only to future reports.

"It is a matter of semantics," he said.

Richardson told reporters, "We don't believe that it would be appropriate to make the order retroactive, since the reports that have been filed with us up to now were filed with the understanding that they would be confidential." He said Ford will set the dates beyond which the report will be made public.

In a statement distributed by the White House, Ford said, "I have concluded that this public disclosure will strengthen existing policy against the Arab boycott of Israel without jeopardizing our vital interests in the Middle East."

"The actions I am directing today should serve as a reaffirmation of our national policy of opposition to boycott actions against nations friendly to us."

Democrats in Congress argued, however, that the Ford administration had "lobbied intensively against efforts to make the names public. Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., accused Ford of "misrepresentation" of the administration position

A House subcommittee, meanwhile, began polling its members to consider whether to release on its own the names of companies that Arab countries have asked in the past to participate. The subcommittee got the names on a confidential basis after threatening administration officials with contempt of Congress.

Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., chairman of the House government operations subcommittee, began the poll, which is expected to take several days.

Ford was criticized particularly by authors of another anti-boycott bill which would have prohibited U.S. companies from boycotting Israel and would have made the reports public. Currently such a boycott is legal unless it is racially discriminatory or violates antitrust laws.

"Either the President was trying to deceive the American people last night, or candidate Ford did not know the policies of President Ford, one or the other," said Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill. He blamed Ford for the bill's demise in the closing days of Congress.

The National Association for Manufacturers, representing many of the affected companies, said it supported the congressional provision to make reports public and has no objection to Ford's proposal, which it described as similar.

U.S. companies have long been required to report requests to participate in international boycotts. Last Oct. 1 the administration added the requirement to report whether the request was honored. But until Ford's statement the administration had firmly resisted making public the names of companies filing the required reports.

Civilian Flights Violated Guard Order

By The Associated Press

Despite a direct written disapproval from the National Guard Bureau in the Pentagon, civilians were flown to Bicentennial events in Nebraska on July 4. Maj. Erik Opsahl, public affairs officer in the Bureau in Washington, confirmed a communication was sent to the Nebraska Army National Guard disapproving a request for the helicopter flights.

Adj. Gen. Francis Winner said Thursday that as far as he can recall, the communication never reached him. Asked what he would have done if he had seen it, Winner replied:

"I don't know what I'd have done. Maybe we'd have done it with state funds rather than federal funds. I don't usually [illegible] tions.

thumb my nose at the Guard Bureau."

Maj. Opsahl said in Washington the communication was sent April 22 in reply to an April 14 request.

"The use of our aircraft for that specific purpose was denied," he said. The message was that "regretfully" the request was "not approved."

"They went ahead because I authorized the flights," Winner said. He said it was the Guard Bureau's "point of view" that the equipment is federal and subject to policy."

"Regulations are like statistics," he said. Winner indicated that normally the Guard equipment is at the disposal of state officials for proper functions.

"We have discretion on how to use it," he said.

Aboard the Bicentennial celebration flights were Winner, Lt. Gov. Gerald Whelan, and various persons connected with the dedication of the Bicentennial sculptures along Interstate 80.

Others were Norman A. Geske, Lincoln, director of Sheldon Art Gallery at the University of Nebraska; Ferdinand Divis, Lincoln, of the State Department of Roads; Thomas Yates, Walpole, Mass., formerly of Bankers Life of Nebraska and a patron of the arts; Jim Johnson, Kearney, general manager of KHGI in Kearney, a member of the state Bicentennial Commission.

Tommie Hill of the Guard Bureau in the Pentagon said earlier such flights fall into a "gray area" under policy and regulations, but Opsahl said Thursday the flights were disapproved.

Opsahl indicated he was not aware of it if any later communications on the subject were exchanged, but sources indicated the April request was the only officially processed effort to get Guard Bureau approval.

Questions also surfaced Thursday about the practice of allowing civilian relatives aboard Guard flights.

Lt. Gov. Gerald Whelan's son was aboard a Jan. 24 flight between Hastings and Lincoln for a recruiting breakfast function in Hastings. Also on board was Hastings Sen. Richard Marvel.

Winner's own son on two occasions, he acknowledged, was aboard flights with the general and his wife and daughter have traveled on Guard aircraft. His daughter is a member of the Air Guard.

"Those flights were legitimate," he said, adding that if there is an empty seat he believes it is proper to fill it with a relative of officials, or a member of his family.

Asked if that could create a morale problem with other Guard personnel, he said, "Well, I don't know if it would or not."

Chinese Street Crime Rises

Hong Kong (UPI) — State radio broadcasts have reported increased social disorder and street crime in at least six Chinese provinces since the death last month of Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

The provincial broadcasts monitored in Hong Kong have given no indication of how widespread or serious the trouble may be but the reports attributed much of the violence to youths and cited many specific "crimes" that clearly were not political, such as "robbing, smashing, looting."

The trouble in the provinces was followed by calls for "unity" by the central leadership in Peking and warnings that "resolute action" would be taken to suppress the disorders.

Since a power struggle among potential successors to Mao erupted early this year, there have been numberous official Chinese reports of "sabotage activities" by "class enemies".

Most of these reports have related such activities to the struggle against Teng Hsiao-ping, who was purged as vice premier and vice party chairman by Mao in April. After the chairman's death Sept. 9, Chinese leaders called for intensification of the campaign against Teng.

The party's theoretical journal, Red Flag Magazine, said that Teng's supporters are powerful and warned, "to practice revisionism is the most intrinsic characteristic of all capitalist roaders in their opposition against the revolutionary cause."

The Red Flag warning appeared to be putting the blame for criminal activities and political unrest on Teng's supporters.

Some of the trouble in at least two areas apparently is being caused by runaway youths from the "down-to-the-countryside" movement launched by Mao.

In Nanking, capital of Kiangsu Province, reports referred to "bad elements" who "incited youngsters to commit crimes." Travelers recently in the city said the youths referred to were those who returned home from the countryside without permission.

A broadcast from Kweichow Province in southwest China appeared to be referring to runaway youths from people's communes when it called for efforts to "get back certain laborers" who had left rural areas.

A Little Governmental Aid

Former British Prime Minister Harold Wilson gives 3-yearold Shivaun Phelan a push in a tire swing during a visit to the Tadworth House Playgroup in southeast London Thursday. Wilson is a new member of the Council of the Save the Children Fund, under whose auspices the Playgroup is operated.

Long-Livers' Lies Like Americans' In Reverse

University Park, Pa. (UPI) — Anthropologist Dr. Paul T. Baker, who doesn't believe highlanders who claim to be 150 years old, says it's just a new twist to the old lies about age.

Unlike aging Americans, the highlanders tell the lies in reverse.

After completing 14 yers of research in the Peruvian highlands of South America, the Pennsylvania State University scientist is convinced that "ages of 115 to 120 represent the outer limits of credibility."

Baker said highlanders in Russia, Tibet and Ecuador who claim ages up to 150 "reverse the American habit of lying about age to seem younger, by lying about age to enjoy the reverence granted long years."

Baker said he also found that "some of the high age claims simply stem from the newness of numerical usage in traditional highland societies."

"For generations, they have counted themselves not in years, but as children, young adults, adults or old; and when someone now asks them their age, they pick one — and the older the better," Baker said.

This, according to Baker, could lead an old Russian highlander of 70 years to say he is 100 years old. And if he is interviewed 30 years later, "he is of course 130 years old."

Baker said his studies focused on the legend of a healthier life in the world's highlands.

There's some myth to that claim, too, he said.

"Lowlanders traveling to high altitudes suffer headaches, nausea and heart problems, even leakage of water into the lungs," Baker said.

"And when they see highlanders working or playing without those symptoms, they assume them to be healthier and their assumption builds a partial myth."

Romans' Letter Critical Of Rasmussen, Star

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Jack Romans of Ord submitted to his Public Service Commission colleagues Thursday a service report on telephone companies and a cover letter which criticizes a fellow commissioner and The Lincoln Star.

The PSC delayed action on accepting or approving the report, agreeing to review and discuss it in two weeks.

Then Commissioner Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont suggested that Chairman Duane Gay of Columbus ensure that any inaccuracies in the report would be corrected. Gay replied, "You know I have no more control over one commissioner than another. I cannot dictate what commissioners do."

The Romans report was ordered Tuesday, after he went into a tirade successfully opposing Rasmussen's request for PSC staff engineers to verify the information on consumer phone problems, and to file a backup report.

Romans' report included documents from all parties involved — including state senators — supporting his statements the matter has been resolved, with improvements to come.

Sen. Robert Clark of Sidney, in a Tuesday letter to Romans, agreed with him there's no further need for what he referred to as costly and time-consuming hearings. But Clark asked Romans to "provide the (Legislature's) Telecommunications Committee with adequate written information to verify your findings."

That request, identical to Rasmussen's, is what sparked Romans' ire at the PSC meeting Tuesday.

"I feel," Romans wrote in his cover letter, "that continued pressing of this issue by Commissioner Rasmussen was a deliberate attempt to create unnecessary problems for the two telephone companies involved in this matter, for the people of Sargent, and particularly also for myself.

"With this to back up my reasoning is that there were, I believe, three newspaper reporters in the room at the time this was discussed yet only one reporter for The Lincoln Star wrote any article at all on the subject using descriptive language that would leave a bad public image.

"This newspaper (The Star) has been noted for two years to back up various issues that Commissioner Rasmussen has been on one side and various other commissioners have been the target of a slanderous story."

There were three reporters at the PSC meeting when it began. But later, when the Romans discussion started, the Associated Press and United Press International reporters had departed to meet their early news deadlines. The Lincoln Star reporter remained.

In the brief discussion of Romans' cover letter Thursday, Rasmussen said the remarks regarding him, reporters and the newspaper were "unnecessary" as part of a report on telephone service conditions for the PSC record and Legislature.

The issue, brought up by state senators involves the Rodeo Telephone Co. of Burwell and Central Nebraska Telephone's Sargent exchange in supplying service to replace old, faulty, farmer-owned lines.

According to the documents Romans supplied, company service has been offered, and at a stated price for the consumer involved; further, Central phone line improvements have been scheduled.

Man Robs Grocery Employe

A young man wearing a ski mask robbed an employe of the Belmont Jack and Jill grocery, 11th and Belmont, early Friday, making off with two bags full of money, police said.

The armed robber stopped the employe as he was on his way to the Plaza Office of the Cornhusker Bank with the money bags. After taking the bags, the masked youth ran westward from the store.

The amount of money stolen was not immediately determined.

Police were looking for a youth 15 to 16 years old, wearing a blue ski mask with red trim, an oversized military jacket, and blue jeans. He was reportedly armed with a small automatic pistol.

Suicide Followed Bellevue Shooting

Bellevue (AP) — An Air Force sergeant and his wife died Thursday evening in related incidents and Bellevue Police Chief Warren Robinson said the case was being handled as murder and suicide.

The victims were identified as Sgt. David W. Goodbrod, 24, and his wife Mary, 22.

Robinson said Mrs. Goodbrod was found dead at a motel with a revolver bullet wound in the head.

The chief said Goodbrod died at Midlands Hospital at Papillion after his station wagon crashed into a paving machine in Bellevue.

Bellevue police said the couple's two-year-old daughter was found later with relatives in the Omaha area.

The chief said autopsies will be performed Friday.

An Offutt Air Force Base spokesman said Goodbrod had been traveling to Ellsworth Air Force Base near Rapid City, S. D. He was transferred from Nellis Air Force Base at Las Vegas, Nev.

Invitation On Legislative Stationery

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

A Lincoln state senator running for another public office sent invitations to a campaign fund-raiser on his Legislature letterhead stationery, supplied by public funds.

"That was not for campaign purposes," said Sen. Harold D. Simpson, the Republican nominee to the Public Service Commission 1st District seat.

The Lincoln Star obtained a copy of the letter, typed in Simpson's Capitol office by one of his secretaries. She said in a separate interview the letters also might have been mailed at state expense.

Dated Sept. 15, the letter says: "The Simpson for Public Service Commission Committee is hosting a fund-raising reception in Lincoln on Sunday, September 26th. If you are in town that day, I cordially invite you and your spouse to attend as my guests. It will take place at East Hills, 70th and Sumner Streets, from 2 to 4 p.m. Hope to see you then!"

The letter is signed "Harold" above Simpson's typed name.

Above is Simpson's standard 84th Legislature letterhead, listing his name, 46th District, home address of 1805 N. 30th and his Unicameral committee memberships.

Asked if he had that letter written and mailed, Simpson said, "Yeah, I did contact all of them (state senators) through a letter."

Under Simpson's signature are the initials "HDSms." Marilynn Shaw is one of his secretaries, but he said "I don't know" if she typed the letter in his Statehouse office.

Simpson said Mrs. Shaw is a "part-time secretary" only "in the off-season." Asked if she works for his PSC campaign, he said, "She's not on my (campaign) staff in any way."

Mrs. Shaw, of 2515 N. 76th, said, "Yes, I did" type the letter in question. Noting that it was three weeks ago, she could not recall if she typed it during paid working hours, because "I have no set schedule."

Asked if Mrs. Shaw used state-supplied office equipment and meterials, Simpson said, "That I wouldn't know." Mrs. Shaw said, "I know I typed it at the Capitol" because "it's the only typewriter I have access to."

Simpson said, "No," the letters weren't mailed at state expense. Asked if he used his campaign fund to mail them, he said he used "my own private stamps."

Mrs. Shaw said, "I am sure I saw to it that they were mailed." She said "They could have" been mailed via state postage processing or "I might have stamped them."

Simpson said, "There's nothing unusual about it. I don't see any issue on it. I get stuff all the time from some of the other legislators on their letterheads." Asked if that includes campaign-related information, he said no, but added he's received invitations that way.

Ford 'Supports Polish Hopes' For Homeland Amid Criticism

By United Press International

Apparently stung by furious public reaction, President Ford Thursday modified his Wednesday debate statement on Soviet domination of Eastern Europe by saying he will never "concede" that domination.

With early surveys indicating Jimmy Carter won the debate on foreign policy, most reaction focused on Ford's statement that "there is no Soviet domination of Eastern Europe and there never will be under the Ford administration."

American voters of East European background, academic specialists in Soviet affairs and news ceommentaries in West European nations expressed astonishment and outrage. Ford reacted by reinterpreting what he had meant to say without acknowledging what he did say.

"Last night in the debate, I spoke of America's firm support for the aspirations for independence of the nationas of Eastern Europe," he told a rally of 15,000 persons at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles.

"The United States has never conceded and never will concede their domination by the Soviet Union."

Acknowledging, in effect, that the Soviets do dominate the area, the President said: "I admire the courage of the Polish people and have always supported the hopes of Polish Americans for their ancestral homeland.

"It is our policy to use every peaceful means to assist countries in Eastern Europe in their efforts to become less dependent on the Soviet Union and to establish closer ties with the West."

His remarks drew a scattering of boos from the crowd.

Morning-after polls aside, what Ford might have to fear most from Wednesday night's second campaign debate is the rage of Polish-American voters like engineer Stanley Michalak of Chicago.

"The man's a fool if he thinks Poland's free of Russian control," Michalak said. "He's a liar or an idiot."

Carter, who claimed victory in the second campaign debate, caught the drift of reaction fast and made it a campaign issue Thursday.

"I think Mr. Ford showed a confusion about . . . the aspirations of human beings, about human rights, about liberty and about simple justice," he told labor leaders in San Francisco.

"For anyone to state that the people in Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Romania and East Germany are free of Soviet demination is ridiculous."

Ford, who rated his own debate performance "all right," made no comment on the Soviet flap early Thursday and instead attacked Carter on another debate issue, national defense.

Climbing into the cockpit of a B1 bomber mockup at a plant in Los Angeles, he said Carter's defense policy "is to speak loudly and carry a fly swatter."

Republican Rep. John Rousselot of California, who met Ford at Los Angeles airport, said the President told him that what he meant by his Soviet domination remarks was that "He does not concede those countries will remain under Communist domination forever."

Rousselot predicted Ford would explain himself "completely" in campaign stops. The 90-minute debate ranged over many other issues, including Middle East and African polices, morality in foreign policy and nuclear arms control negotiations.

An Elmo Roper poll of 300 viewers nationwide showed 40% thought Carter won, 30% favored Ford and 30% called it even.

After the first campaign debate on domestic issues, Roper called Ford the winner by 39 to 31%.

Scattered newspaper surveys of local readership, including those of the Washington Star and the San Francisco Examiner, also gave Carter the nod this time.

The two debate for last time Oct. 22 in Williamsburg, Va., and the format allows questioning on any topic. It seemed certain the panelists will bring up the Soviet-East Europe issue.

"If Mr. Ford really believes that Eastern European nations are 'independent' and 'autonomous' he is living in a fool's paradise," said former U.S. ambassador to Poland John Gronouski.

Said Dr. Lev Dobriansky of Georgetown University, chairman of the National Captive Nations Committee: "I was shocked to hear President Ford state and even try to defend this preposterous statement."

And Rose Wozjechowicz of Chicago: "Poland is little Russia."

Foreign Newspapers: 'Grave Faux Pas'

By The Associated Press

An "incredible blunder," "a major gaffe" and "a grave faux pas" were how some foreign newspapers, commentators and diplomats Thursday described President Ford's statement that Eastern Europe is not dominated by the Soviet Union.

While expressing amazement at the statement, some diplomats at the United Nations in New York suggested that Ford probably intended to say he does not recognize Soviet domination of East Europe.

"Ford Drops 'Red Empire' Clanger," the London Evening News headlined New York correspondent Jeffrey Blyth's front-page report on Wednesday night's Ford-Carter debate.

"President Ford stunned millions of TV viewers last night by declaring that 'there is no Soviet domination of Eastern Europe under a Ford administration and there never will be,' " Blyth reported.

"Political observers said Mr. Ford had committed a major gaffe and Democrats accused him of ignoring the human rights of millions of people under Communist rule," he wrote.

Ford went on to lump Yugoslavia, Romania and Poland together as East European countries that do not consider themselves dominated by the Soviets.

A commentator on Italian television, who said Jimmy Carter "was on the offensive throughout," called the Ford statement a "grave faux pas."

In its account of the debate, the Soviet news agency Tass made no mention of the Eastern Europe issue and instead accented the positive comments Ford made on detente and Carter's criticism of massive American arms sale overseas.

At the United Nations, foreign diplomats declined public comment on the debate, saying it was a domestic U.S. matter. But many privately expressed disbelief at the President's remarks.

Many in the U.N. community said grouping Yugoslavia, Romania and Poland together appeared to show a fundamental misunderstanding of the situation in the region.

"It came out as if Ford had failed to read his computer printout on East Europe correctly," said a West European diplomat.

In London, a strategic affairs specialist said that because of their varying relationships with Moscow it was wrong to lump the three nations together.

"The Poles and the Romanians are in the military Warsaw Pact, which is dominated by the Soviets. The Yugoslavs are not," said Richard Burt, assistant director of the International Institute of Strategic Studies. "The Poles took part in the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968, but the Romanians did not and they and the Yugoslavs strongly criticized the invasion."

Burt, who said he would not comment directly on the Ford statement, also pointed out that the Poles and Romanians are members of the Eastern Bloc's economic cooperative, while the Yugoslavs are not.

In its report on the debate, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug offered no commentary but told its readers Ford "said that some countries of Eastern Europe, among which he listed Yugoslavia, 'are not subjugated' and that their people believe in their autonomy and freedom."

In a speech Thursday in Bucharest, Romanian Communist party chief Nicolae Ceausescu reiterated his often-stated insistence on autonomy for Romania, saying, "The question of socialism is a question of each people, of the advanced, revolutionary forces in every country. It cannot be imposed from the outside, it cannot be imported. . . ."

There was no indication that the U.S. presidential debate prompted this reaffirmation by Ceausescu.

As for other issues raised in the debate, Panamanian officials Thursday accused both Ford and Carter of being irresponsible and confused about the future of the Panama Canal. But the Panamanians agreed to resume negotiations on a new treaty governing the waterway.

During the debate, both men appeared to take relatively hard lines on the negotiations.

The Middle East received considerable attention in the debate, and the conservative Israeli newspaper Maariv of Tel Aviv said in an editorial that Ford "was pushed onto the defensive by Carter's accusation that the administration acts with tolerance toward the Arab boycott on trade with Israel."

As a result, Maariv said, "Ford had no choice but to change his position and announce he would order the disclosure of names of firms surrendering to the boycott."

At the United Nations, Israeli diplomats were reported delighted at Carter's tough stance on arms sales and relations with Arab states but concerned by the Democrat's tough line on nuclear nonproliferation. Israel, which is believed to have the capacity to build nuclear weapons, has not signed the international nuclear nonproliferation treaty.

225 Arrested In Phase 4 of Crackdown On Mexican Heroin

Washington (UPI) — Federal agents Thursday arrested 255 suspects in a crackdown on major distributors of Mexican brown heroin in more than 35 U.S. cities, the Drug Enforcement Administration announced.

DEA Administrator Peter B. Bensinger announced the sweep at noon when 230 had been arrested. By late afternoon a spokesman said arrests totaled 255 and were spreading beyond an initial list of 35 cities.

Agents still sought another 170 suspects, the spokesman said. It was also announced agents seized 20 kilograms of brown heroin worth $20 million at street prices.

The seizures included 28 pounds agents had spotted at the Mexican border last Friday and "convoyed" to Chicago where one of the suspects was arrested on delivery, Bensinger said.

The arrests — called "Phase 3" of a four-phase investigation begun last May 1 — were triggered by the unsealing of federal indictments in six cities against 110 persons late Wednesday, Bensinger said.

Bensinger said the indictments were returned in Detroit, Chicago, San Antonio, Tex., Phoenix, Ariz., Los Angeles and San Diego, Calif. — "target cities" in which about half of all seizures have been made since May 1.

The arrests "should not be interpreted as the end of heroin in the U.S.A. or cause a major crunch in heroin supplies," Bensinger said. But he said follow-up arrests in Phase 4 "will have an impact."

The impact might well mean lowering the present 400 monthly fatality rate from heroin overdoses, reduced addiction and reduced crime as the scarcer heroin is sold in weakened form at higher prices, he said.

Brown heroin from South American sources has recently been widely substituted for the traditional white heroin. Supplies of the more highly refined white heroin dwindled because of lowered opium poppy production in Turkey, seizure of the Marseille "laboratories" where it was purified, and heavy international crackdowns on the established smuggling routes from abroad.

Earlier phases in the DEA program brought about 1,300 arrests and the seizure of 600 pounds of heroin — with a $300 million retail value — one aircraft, over $700,000 in cash, nearly 300 vehicles and over 200 firearms, Bensinger said.

Asked at a news conference why the announcement was not delayed until completion of Phase 4 after the national election next month, Bensinger — an appointee of President Ford — said the grand juries dictated the timing.

The federal government cannot afford to stop all its activities because of the election," he said.

The arrests were made in Boston, Detroit, Lansing and Adrian, Mich., Toledo, Ohio, Baltimore, New York, New Orleans, Minneapolis, Kansas City, St. Louis, Wichita, Jacksonville, Orlando and Tampa, Fla., San Francisco, Los Angeles. San Diego, and Bakersville, Calif., Denver, Mobile, Ala., Chicago, San Antonio, Houston, McAllen, Laredo, El Paso, Austin and Corpus Christi, Tex., Albuquerque, N.M., Phoenix, Ariz., Seattle and Spokane, Wash., Boise, Idaho, and Atlanta.

Mystery Shrouds Africa Disease

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A mystery disease causing high fever and bleeding has reportedly taken as many as 230 lives in central Africa and is under close study by African and world health authorities.

Radio Uganda Thursday claimed the disease, which broke out in the southern Sudan two weeks ago, is under control and has been contained. It quoted the south Sudanese regional minister for health, Dr. Justin Nya, as counting 12 people confirmed dead.

It was not immediately clear whether Nya's death count applied to the whole country or only his region. Reports from Sudan last weekend said more than 80 people had died of the disease there.

It was also unclear whether his claim of control applied beyond his region.

The disease has also occurred in Zaire where 150 persons reportedly died, including two Belgian nuns and a Belgian priest working in a Roman Catholic mission at Yabumku near the Sudanese border.

World Health Organization doctors in Geneva reported the disease is marked by high fever, aches, vomiting and bleeding from the nose, mouth, ears and intestines.

In Sudan the disease was first reported at the town of Maridi, about 150 miles west of Juba. It first appeared in Zaire at Yabumku.

A WHO spokesman said medical teams rushed to the infected area at the request of Sudanese authorities. East Germany has also sent medical supplies to help the relief work, Uganda Radio said.

The spokesman at WHO headquarters in Geneva said blood samples from Sudanese stricken by the disease are being examined in high security laboratories in Europe. He said it would take probably several more days for the scientists to complete their analysis and isolate a virus.

He said the laboratories are described as high security because they are specially equipped to prevent a spread of the virus. He did not name the laboratories, but the Belgian Institute of Tropical Medicine in Antwerp said it and a similar institute in London are working with WHO to identify the disease.

The WHO spokesman said the disease had a "very high mortality rate" but had no figures on the number stricken nor the number dead.

The spokesman said WHO has received no notification of the disease from the Zaire authorities so far. Nor could he confirm reports from Nairobi that the infection was fatal within 24 hours from first outbreak of symptoms.

Kenya closed its border and air links with the southern Sudan last week to try to prevent spread of the disease.

The disease also prompted Belgian officials to organize compulsory health checks for airline passengers. Brussels is the main arrival point for travelers from Zaire.

Four passengers from Zaire were found suffering from fever but a thorough examination showed none were carriers of the mystery ailment.

500,000 French Workers Protest Austerity Program

Paris (UPI) — An estimated 500,000 workers marched against the government's austerity program Thursday in the largest demonstration since the student-worker rebellion of 1968 which led to the resignation of President Charles de Gaulle.

The marches climaxed a 24-hour general strike call against a government program to battle France's 13% inflation through price and wage restraints.

In the only reported incident, several marchers charged four non-striking bus drivers who had stopped to let the parade go by. March marshals headed off the would-be attackers and cajoled them back into the line of march.

Labor unions said more than half a million people marched peacefully in Paris in brilliant autumn sunshine. Police declined an immediate estimate of the number of marchers, but independent observers said 500,000 appeared to be a reasonable estimate.

The parade was supposed to be led by striking police in uniform but they did not show up. However, striking farmers brought along barrels of red wine and sold it to demonstrators for eight cents a plastic cup.

The strike itself was spotty. Schools stayed closed, mail went undelivered and garbage uncollected. But electric service was maintained for the most part. Most shops, stores and factories were open, if understaffed. Public transport was slowed but not stopped.

The strike was called by two of the three biggest unions in France — the Communist-led General Workers' Confederation and the far-left French Democratic Labor Confederation.

The third big union, the Socialist-leaning Workers Force said the strike would do more harm than good, but some of its locals walked out anyway in a rare show of insubordination.

Skilled Trades Cloud Ford Ratification

Detroit (UPI) — Top United Auto Workers officials Thursday submitted a tentative contract agreement with the Ford Motor Co. to 170,000 striking workers for their approval. But a quick return to production was clouded by unsettled local issues and dissatisfied skilled trades workers.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock termed the tentative agreement "significant and substantial," scoring breakthroughs in shortening the work week and providing greater wages and benefits for workers. It will serve as the basis for contracts at General Motors, Chrysler and American Motors.

The 175-member UAW National Ford Council, in a meeting that lasted most of the day, voted overwhelmingly to approve the $1 billion-plus pact which was agreed to on Tuesday. Ratification will begin this weekend and the final vote should be known by next Tuesday, Woodcock said.

But the union president who guided the auto industry negotiations since mid-July said unsettled local contracts probably will slow Ford's startup from a strike that halted all auto-building operations since midnight, Sept. 14.

By late Wednesday, just 45 of the 99 local bargaining units had reached agreement on pacts to supplement the national contract. Just eight of 19 assembly plants are ready to roll and only 15 of 43 manufacturing plants have agreements.

"There certainly will be a delay because we're not going to have agreements at all the key locations," Woodcock told a news conference following the Ford council meeting. "We don't see how all of them can be settled by next Tuesday."

In 1967, the last time Ford was the "target" to set the pattern for the auto industry, the national contract was settled after 47 days. But the lack of local agreements over such issues as parking lots, production standards, wash-up facilities, cafeterias and health and safety matters, dragged out the shutdown for another 19 days.

Of more immediate concern was the ratification of the national agreement over some objections by skilled tradesmen, the 25,000 tool makers, electricians, millwrights and equipment repairmen who make premium money and have a possible veto power over any agreement.

They have complained their pay is not far enough above that of production workers. The new contract calls for a 25-cent an hour premium for the skilled tradesmen atop the 3% first-year wage increase, plus 20 cents, all workers will receive.

Under the UAW bylaws, the skilled tradesmen and production workers vote separately. A majority of each of the groups must approve the agreement or the union will declare it turned down although the skilled tradesmen form only a minority of the total membership.

"If the skilled tradesmen don't ratify the agreement, then the strike continues," Woodcock said. "But I won't worry about that until I see the votes."

Woodcock indicated that if the pact is turned down by skilled tradesmen, the union might seek to renegotiate it with Ford. The company earlier in the summer said it would not be bound by any veto by a minority of the workers.

The union won two major goals in the contract — 13 more paid days off a year by the end of the three-year contract and up to $600 in a single payment to retirees whose pensions have been eaten up by inflation.

Woodcock said the shorter work time will mean a 38½-hour week by the end of the third agreement and is the union's first step toward the four-day work week.

It also won continuation of the 3% annual wage, plus 20 cents per hour extra in the first year for production workers; an extra payment for skilled tradesmen; improvements in financing of the fund that gives laid-off workers up to 95% of their regular take-home pay; a rebate program on the purchase of new cars; vision care; inverse seniority during layoffs; and continuation of the current Christmas to New Year's shutdown.

New York Times News Summary

Wholesale Prices Leap

Washington — Wholesale prices increased in September by nine-tenths of one per cent, their largest rise in nearly a year, the Labor Department reported Thursday.

The new figures were immediately seized upon by Jimmy Carter, the Democratic presidential candidate, who said they provided "still another tragic example of the failure of Mr. Ford's economic polices."

Britain Turns To Restraints

London — The British Government slapped harsh and unprecedented restraints on a national economy that seems to have developed a built-in tendency to run out of control. The restrains involve the complex mechanisms that the British treasury and the Bank of England use to control the amount of money flowing through the economy. Among its many effects is likely to be an immediate rise to perhaps 13% of the interest rate British homeowners will pay for their mortgages.

Israel Arms Zone

Rmaich, Lebanon — Israel is establishing a rapidly growing military security zone inside Lebanese territory by organizing and arming Lebanese right-wing Christian militias in the border region. The objective of the Israeil move, it is thought, is to prevent Palestinian guerrillas who are now hard pressed in northern and central Lebanon from regrouping in the border area and becoming once more a threat to Israel.

Nigeria Gets Constitution

Lagos, Nigeria — The military government released the draft of a new constitution, a voluminous and painstakingly prepared document that would turn Nigeria into Africa's foremost multi-party democracy.

Sterilization Use Doubles

Washington (Washington Star) — Sterilization is gaining increasing acceptance as a contraceptive method among married couples seeking to control the size of their families, with its use doubling over the last decade, according to a newly released survey by the National Center for Health Statistics.

FPC Takes First Step

Washington (Washington Star) — The Federal Power Commission has voted tentatively to approve a controversial accounting method for public utilities that would raise electricity rates — but has backed away from full implementation of the plan.

New York (AP) — America's two major stock exchanges took tandem steps Thursday toward a possible merger.

The New York and American stock exchanges each appointed three-member committees to examine the merger question.

Thai Admiral Unlikely Choice For New Ruler

©The New York Times

Bangkok — Several months ago, a crew from Bangkok's Metropolitan Electricity Authority found it would have to turn off the voltage to a group of select houses along a small lane on the outskirts of the city.

They approached one of the houses with trepidation. Senior Thai military officials are not used to being told, particularly by a government agency, that they will have to do without something.

But when the problem was explained, the inhabitant of the house, then Adm. Sa-nagad Chaloryu, a chunky man with close-cropped hair and broad face, simply smiled and observed that it was all for the public good. The power went off and the work was quickly completed.

Wednesday, the power of leadership was suddenly and, many of his friends believe, somewhat reluctantly, thrust into Adm. Sa-ngad's hands. He and more than a dozen fellow top military officers who formed the administrative reform council seized control of the government in the wake of student-police riots and Sa-ngad, as the council chairman, became Thailand's new ruler.

It could not have fallen, many believe, on a more unlikely prospect. And it is largely for that reason that some observers believe that in fact he is not the real power behind the junta — that the real power rests among the stronger generals, particularly leaders of the army, which has traditionally dominated the military hierarchy, leaving the tiny navy far behind in power, prestige and perquisites.

Yet if this is so, Sa-ngad must have been chosen by the junta for other reasons — and the reason most widely mentioned is his character, his personality, his unscarred reputation.

It is that type of image that the junta is trying to project to the Thai people in an effort to heal the scars of weeks and months of turmoil and Wednesday's bloody conflict.

Sa-ngad Chaloryu was born March 3, 1915, in Suphanburi Province north of Bangkok. Little is known of his early life, until he graduated from the Royal Naval Academy in 1939 and began his rise through the ranks of the Thai military.

The service he chose has always been the least powerful of the Thai military — fewer than 24,000 officers and men — a result largely of the fact that most of Thailand's wars have been with landlocked neighbors to the north.

During World War II, he served on a succession of torpedo boats, the backbone of the Thai navy. His first wife was killed during the war, reportedly as the result of an allied bombing raid. He later remarried and his second wife, Sukon, is a fourth generation Christian and one of the leading Protestant leaders in Southeast Asia. He has two children — a son studying architecture in the United States and a daughter studying medicine in Germany.

In November 1951, he was imprisoned briefly as a result of his somewhat peripheral involvement in the so-called Manhattan Cup — an abortive attempt to overthrow Field Marshal Pibul Songkram that acquired its name because it took place while the U.S. ambassador was handing over the dredger Manhattan to the Thai government represented by the field marshal.

He bounced back quickly and during the 1960s held a succession of executive positions with the royal fleet — as chief of staff, then deputy commander-in-chief, finally as assistant chief of staff of operations of the entire navy. In November 1973, he was named naval commander-in-chief and two years later succeeded to the post of supreme commander of the armed forces.

His appointment caused little stir. He was seen very much as a weak compromise candidate — a year from retirement age, designed to alienate no one, yet an eminent conciliator and soother of bruised egos — a frequent complaint in the Thai armed forces.

He apparently was aligned with no outside political forces, his sole brush with politics having been a two-year appointment by the king to a seat in the largely ceremonial senate and a successive two-year appointment to the National Legislative Assembly, a huge body that drafted the constitution that the admiral abolished Wednesday night.

It was for his political nonaffiliation, too, apparently, that he was appointed to the post of defense minister Monday, when former Premier Seni Pramoj was unable to resolve various claims to the post by members of his fragmenting coalition. Later, attempts were made to try to find him a party, and, according to senior Democratic Party politicians, he had reportedly agreed to join the Democrats when the entire exercise was rendered moot by the coup.

Deposed Thai Leader Released

Bangkok, Thailand (UPI) — Thailand's new military rulers released deposed Prime Minister Seni Pramoj Thursday and ended the midnight-to-dawn curfew. They told newspapers they may be allowed to reopen in three days if they pledge a firm anti-Communist line.

The rector of Thammasat University, scene of bloody battles that killed at least 27 persons and wounded 180 others before the Wednesday coup, was released from custody and left the country for London. It was not clear if he was expelled.

More than 1,300 leftwing students were arrested at the university, authorities said, including the leadership of the National Students Center of Thailand which sponsored violent antigovernment protests that led to the coup. The students denounced Seni's government for its failure to move against former dictator Thanom Kittikachorn, who returned from exile in Singapore last month.

Thanom, who re-entered Thailand as a Buddhist monk, has had no comment on the military takeover.

A burst of submachine gun fire Thursday night sent pedestrians scrambling for cover near the university. Security forces said it was a "misunderstanding."

Army jeeps carrying heavy machine guns patrolled Bangkok's streets.

The new government, which calls itself the National Evolutionary Administration Council, summoned the heads of all diplomatic missions, including U.S. Charge d'Affaires John Burke, for a briefing and an outline of the new regime's foreign policy plans.

Family sources said Seni was released after spending the night in protective custody. He was "invited" to supreme military headquarters Wednesday an hour before the coup leaders abolished the constitution and dissolved the government and parliament.

The new administration, which shut down all newspapers in the country, told editors Thursday they will be subject to precensorship if publication is permitted, and they must "support democracy and the throne" and take a firm anti-Communist line.

There was speculation some of Bangkok's more than 30 English, Thai and Chinese language newspapers will be denied permission to reopen. Applications will be reviewed for the next three days, the government said.

The only newspaper to publish Thursday was an unofficial ultra rightwing publication that carried a photograph of Adm. Sa-ngad Chaloryoo; Air Chief Marshal Kamol Dechatungka, the new "peacekeeping director," and former army commander in chief Gen. Boonchai Bamrungpong.

Television stations have been allowed to resume normal programs, provided they broadcast no political commentaries.

Ford Loses Advantage

The initial measurements of public reaction to the second debate Wednesday night do an injustice to what really happened at the Palace of Fine Arts in San Francisco.

Quick samplings by polling organizations and wire services reflected a split among the electorate similar to that following the first debate, only this time Jimmy Carter was perceived to have edged out President Ford as the "winner" of the debate. But it was by a narrow margin, just as Ford was believed — although not in this corner — to have carried the first debate. And there was, as before, a substantial number of people who thought it was a stand-off.

There was a parallel to the first debate other than the close margin of disagreement among viewers. In the Philadelphia encounter Ford's challenge, many asserted, was to prove himself smart enough to be president and he was generally credited with so proving.

In the San Francisco confrontation, it was similarly up to Carter to prove that a former Georgia governor could jump from the farm system into the big leagues of international relations and make himself sound believable — and that he did.

So much so, in fact, that he took away much of the momentum Ford had been building over the past weeks. Wednesday night's performance, along with other campaign developments over the past six days, gave Carter the lift he urgently needed to avoid onrushing disaster, and that is what was important about the debate this week.

The Nixon-Ford-Kissinger foreign policy was not thoroughly discredited by Carter. The Democrat on several occasions could have scored more heavily than he did but for unexplained reasons held back. Nor did Carter do particularly well in the area of proposing a specific foreign policy line he would adopt if elected.

But Carter was aggressive enough, had a good enough feel of the subject matter, to carry the argument generally in a debate that should have been tailor-made for the president. An experienced, confident incumbent should have made short work of the upstart Georgian and many observers had it figured that way. Carter would have done well enough just to avoid utter embarrassment.

But Ford appeared bewildered at times — what he said on a couple of occasions was downright bewildering. He appeared unable to capitalize as much as he could have on the many accomplishments and initiatives for which the Nixon-Ford administration can take credit and he was incapable of adequately explaining the shortcomings with which he was charged.

It was, probably, more Ford's disappointing performance than a good Carter effort which tipped the balance to the challenger.

The candidates did not get to the meat of many of the issues upon which the fate of the world may turn. The format restricted adequate discussion and exchange of many points.

But in this ninety-minute game, it is the perception of what happened that counts. And even if it was only by a scant margin — many would say it was a clear-cut margin — Carter was perceived to have held his own, and in the lion's den to boot.

If a rational discussion of international affairs was the loser, Carter's White House chances were nevertheless improved.

The President was playing with a home field advantage and he blew it.

Of Cars And Speeds

Two items have caught our attention in recent days. One was a radio commercial sponsored by the National Safety Council and some government agency. The commercial zeroed in on a substantial reduction in lives lost on the nation's highway since the 55 miles per hour speed limit has been in effect.

While we have no reason to challenge the figures, the conclusion is not necessarily correct. It is simply impossible to pinpoint the real effect of the speed limit on accidents and lost lives, due to the fact that the limit introduces so many other variables into the situation.

The number of miles traveled, the length of trips and possibly many other things have a bearing on accidents and their severity.

It is obvious, however, that the 55 limit remains a controversial matter and ought to be dealt with, regardless of death figures. The fact is that nearly everyone ignores the limit and the working or practical limit today, the speed at which you can travel without getting a ticket, is somewhere between 60 and 67 miles an hour.

We have always believed the 55 mile limit was ridiculous and we still do. It ought to be changed. We should not have laws that are simply ignored by the citizenry.

The other matter of interest was the statement in Lincoln by Secretary of Transportation William Coleman Jr. that "anyone who pushes policies that would phase out the automobile is a first class phony."

He said that while talking up a variety of other forms of public transportation, including a compliment for Lincoln on its transit system and assurance that the city would get a $1.4 million grant for that system. So, Coleman is a realist. He knows there are transportation systems other than the private automobile that must be cultivated but he is not foolish enough to assume the automobile is a lost cause.

That's the way we think it ought to be. We should encourage public transportation and efficiency in the use of the private automobile to the maximum extent possible but it is stupidity to believe we are going to replace the private car or even that its use is going to decline.

Just as we need a practical and realistic speed limit, we need a practical and realistic plan for our future transportation needs.

ANTHONY LEWIS

Carter Turns The Corner

SAN FRANCISCO — The most striking aspect of the second presidential debate was the temper of Jimmy Carter: tough, assured, confident. The confidence was especially notable, and it reflected what he has been showing on the stump this last week. He evidently felt he had turned a corner and there were reasons for that.

First, he has returned to basics on the hustings and in the second debate: unemployment and other economic distress, the Nixon-Ford record, the failures of American leadership abroad. And all of this is tied to the theme he first sounded in the primaries — that Americans want to be proud of their country again.

"Our country is still strong, vital, idealistic," he told an enthusiastic audience at Boston College. "Its spirit has been damaged in the last eight years, but its people are the same. We have pent-up within us a deep hunger to restore the precious things we have lost."

Second, he has learned something from those weeks of fumbles and slipping polls. There is reason to believe that he really was suffering from Deweyitis: that he thought of the campaign as a mere inconvenience on the way to the White House. Now that overconfidence is gone.

Carter is reaching out for help, from other political and public figures, not trying to go it alone. In Massachusetts he had Sen. Edward Kennedy by his side. Preparing for the second debate, he spent hours with James R. Schlesinger, the former defense secretary fired by President Ford — a conservative favorite because he takes a tough line toward the Soviet Union, but a man liberals can respect because he has principles and began cleaning up the CIA.

Third, some Democrats who have been uneasy about Carter have begun remembering what the alternative is. American liberals have a self-destructive genius for demanding perfection from their own side and forgetting the follies of the opposition. That instinct has been evident in the 1976 campaign, when many liberal-minded commentators have applied far tougher standards to Carter than to the deeply conservative Ford.

Perhaps it is a delayed recognition that economic issues are at the heart of the election; or perhaps people have begun to recall Gerald Ford's right-wing views on the environment, government secrecy, human rights and adventurism abroad. In any event, fewer voters who call themselves liberals seem to be talking down Carter.

Fourth, Carter has learned to live with the one inescapable handicap of his campaign: the fact that he is up against an incumbent in the White House. Does anyone now remember those hilarious claims by supporters of Ronald Reagan that he would be a stronger Republican candidate than President Ford? If Reagan had been nominated, Jimmy Carter would be coasting in.

The advantages of incumbency have been made all too painfully clear to Carter. He takes questions from any reporter who troubles to turn up at his frequent press conferences, while the President stays in the privileged sanctuary of the Rose Garden. Some of Carter's people wish he would deal with the problem by responding less freely, but that is not his way. After resenting the imbalance, he has seemingly come to accept its inevitability and jokes about it.

Mr. Ford lost some of his protected status in the run-up to the second debate. The Earl Butz affair put him on a spot where he could not get by on generalities and photo opportunities. He had to do something, and he was so slow and insensitive and indecisive in doing it that he damaged his recently-acquired image of leadership.

Robert Dole has also been helpful to the Democrats, by sounding more and more like an inelegant Spiro Agnew. At the same time, Walter Mondale has brought his vice presidential campaign to life by forcefully reminding voters that Gerald Ford was a dogged apologist for Richard Nixon.

The Carter campaign remains rather a ramshackle affair. Time is wasted on badly-advanced meetings. Chances for national television are missed. The staff is overburdened. But to dwell on those shortcomings may be to exalt form over substance.

At times, in recent weeks, one might have thought that the United States was having a campaign about campaigning as competition, that is, to see who was better at competing. The fascination with such things as debating techniques threatened to obscure the deep differences over economic policy, attitudes toward democracy and human rights abroad and the like. That peculiar phase of the campaign may be over.

The challenge that remains for Jimmy Carter — and it could be decisive — is one of personal confidence. Up close, he seems an inner-directed man, secure and serene. But his campaign has evidently failed to show such a person. He must convince the country that he is a strong character, a man to be trusted. He made a start in San Francisco Wednesday night.

MARIANNE MEANS

Holdovers At All Levels

WASHINGTON—In a recent New York Times-CBS survey, a slight majority of voters (52 per cent) said that while Watergate should not be a factor in the presidential election, they felt too many of President Nixon's policies were still being carried on by President Ford.

Those voters had a point. President Ford is philosophically compatible with Nixon, and his government priorities are similar. But, more importantly, he has left Nixon's men in charge of the government.

Beyond the White House inner circle, Ford has made little effort to replace Nixon appointees, despite the fact there are 2,500 top-level political employees whom he may fire at will.

One of the most glaring examples of a Nixon man who has outstayed his public welcome is Mike Balzano, director of Action, the umbrella agency which oversees the Peace Corps and Vista. In theory, it is one of the Federal government's most idealistic programs. It is also widely considered to be one of the worse managed and most ineffectual.

The squat, crew-cut Balzano often bragged of his close ties to the Nixon family back in the days before Nixon was forced to resign in disgrace.

Before he was appointed chief at Action, Balzano worked for White House dirty trickster Chuck Colson during the 1972 presidential campaign. Officially, his work was labeled "liaison with ethnic groups." Associates, however, say he was actively involved in dirty tricks, including substituting an order for pizza pies for an elaborate dinner to be served African ambassadors at a Washington reception for Sen. Edmund Muskie.

☆ ☆ ☆

Senior civil servants at Action say that Balzano and his deputy, John Ganley, also a Nixon appointee, have removed non-political career civil servants from key jobs and replaced them with employees who have Nixon connections.

The Nixon crowd includes Russell Lynch, a Ganley protege, who is general counsel; Ronald Gerevas, a former member of H. R. Haldeman's Los Angeles advertising agency, who is head of all domestic programs; James Meyer, a former employee of Nixon's 1972 campaign committee, who is head of special volunteer programs; and Victor Hruska, brother of Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., who is head of the Older Americans Volunteer programs.

A nominal Democrat, Harry Hogan, is associate director for policy and planning and is often pushed forward by Balzano to demonstrate the non-partisan nature of the voluntary Action program. But agency employees say that Hogan is just a front-man, and his office is really run by his deputy Thomas Gray, a Balzano protege responsible for much of the reorganization that has entrenched the Nixon loyalists.

One sad result of having left-tover politicians in control of a government agency is that the mechanisms designed to keep it on its toes and careful with public money get rusty.

For instance, Balzano recently took two dozen officials to a worldwide volunteerism conference in Vienna. The conference arrangements alone cost American taxpayers $35,000, not including costs of travel and accommodations. Both congressional veterans and Action staffers have privately questioned the value of the trip.

This summer Balzano summoned home all 69 Peace Corps country directors for a five-day conference at nearby Columbia, Md. Balzano, and 20 other Washington staffers stayed at the fashionable Columbia Inn, although the city is within a 45-minute drive from Washington. The tab for the Washington group was reportedly $20,000.

Ford promised to bring higher standards of morality and competence to the government. But he has not breathed into his administration the fresh approach he promised. He is simply sitting atop what remains, in a very real sense, still the Nixon government.

The Old Gang

WASHINGTON — John W. Dean strikes again.

The former White House counsel's detailed and accurate testimony before the Senate Watergate Committee in June 1973 started Richard Nixon out of the White House and H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman on their way to the grand jury. Now a freelance journalist, Dean has ruined Earl Butz by recounting the latter's horrid racist anecdote to the readers of Rolling Stone.

Like a flash of lightning above a haunted house, the brief return of John Dean to the center of events in Washington serves to remind everyone that the Ford Administration is run by the old Nixon gang, the hard-core loyalists who stuck with him through every lying twist and turn to the day of his resignation. As each new piece of evidence about his criminal involvements became known, they stood and brazenly defended him.

The most important defender was Mr. Ford himself. Speaking in Muncie, Ind. on July 24, 1974, only two weeks before the Nixon resignation, Ford told a Republican audience: "I've watched the (impeachment) proceedings unravel as they have, beginning in 1973. I've read the testimony. I've talked to people who are involved in the House Judiciary Committee.

"I can say from the bottom of my heart that the President of the United States is innocent. He is right."

A week earlier, Rabbi Baruch M. Korff had held one of his rallies here to demonstrate support for Nixon. One speaker was Secretary Butz. Another was Mrs. Anne Armstrong, then a top-ranking White House aide. The Times reported: "When Mrs. Armstrong, a counselor to Mr. Nixon, castigated the press, she received a standing ovation."

After he became president, Ford rewarded Mrs. Armstrong with the ambassadorship to Great Britain. Another Nixon stalwart was George Bush, then the GOP national chairman. Ford rewarded him with the ambassadorship to China and, more recently, the directorship of the CIA.

Alexander M. Haig was Nixon's staff chief and tireless defender, instrumental in firing one special prosecutor and trying to "stonewall" a second. President Ford restored him to his rank as a full general in the Army and made him NATO commander.

Ford's political "kitchen cabinet" consists of men who were in the White House bunker trying to save Nixon in his last desperate months — Dean Burch, William Timmons, Melvin Laird and Rogers Morton. Ford's agent in the South is old Nixon hand Harry Dent. To hold Texas, he is relying on John Connally.

Only two major officials resigned over Watergate — Elliot Richardson and William Ruckelshaus. Ford fobbed off Richardson with the relatively unimportant job of commerce secretary and has appointed Ruckelshaus to nothing.

The rest of the Nixon team proved themselves careerists quite able to suppress any embarrassment they may have felt or any convictions they may have held. As Congress, the courts, and the special prosecutor closed in on Nixon, they went on whistling "Hail to the Chief." Their crassness has been rewarded. Ford kept them in office for another two years and the nation may now keep them in for another four.

☆ ☆ ☆

The ultimate expression of the old gang's arrogance was the selection of Sen. Bob Dole — Nixon's favorite hatchet man — for vice president. Four years ago, Dole led the propaganda attack on the press for its attempts to get at the truth about Watergate. As recently as May 1974, after most of the tapes had become known, Dole said he would welcome Nixon's help in his campaign for reelection.

Why worry about political ethics? A party that would accept Bob Dole as its vice presidential candidate and a nation that would buy the idea that Gerald Ford has cleaned house in Washington is a party and a nation that would obviously believe anything.

As the sage of San Clemente sits in the setting sun and fabricates his memoirs, he must occasionally rub his hands and smile a rare saturnine smile at the thought that Jerry and Bob and all the old gang may actually get away with it. It does rather confirm his hero P. T. Barnum's wise saying: "No man ever went broke underestimating the taste of the public."

Federal Glut

Blue Hill, Neb.

On November 7, 1970 in Baden Baden, West Germany, Dr. Ernst T. Krebs Jr., science director of the John Beard Memorial Foundation, received an award honoring his discovery and research on Vitamin B 15, pangamic acid and Vitamin B 17 (Nitriloside or Laetrile).

Laetrile is not a stimulant, nor a depressant, nor a halluciogen. It is not habit forming. It is available in many foods, millet, buckwheat, lima beans, elderberries, raspberries, molasses extracted from sorghum cane and apricots, to name a few.

I was told recently by an officer of the FDA that apricot pits are not food but a drug. Apricots and the pits thereof have been a staple of the diet of the Hunzacutt peoples for many, many years. There has never been a case of cancer in Hunza, a land where it is not uncommon for people to live past 100 years of age. But our government (FDA) has labeled apricots a dangerous drug and removed them from store shelves. They are available as part of the whole fruit.

A recent letter from Gary Stephens stated: "The main reason people use laetrile is fear — fear that the disease is uncurable, that surgery or other therapy is mutilating and that the medical profession is not to be trusted."

Are not these fears well founded? In all too many cases the disease is not cured. The surgery and other therapy is mutilating. And the medical profession is not infallible.

As to the dangers of laetrile, we must keep in mind anything can be dangerous when misused or used by the wrong person. Take the case of a young boy who died from eating a dish of ice cream. The ice cream contained peanut oil, a substance to which the boy had an extreme allergy. The presence of peanut oil was not listed on the label. According to FDA standards it is not required that the ingredients in such products be listed.

I think my main concern is the government denying us a freedom of choice. I feel we are getting more "protection" from government than we can stand.

Gauger Good For Elders

Lincoln, Neb.

Many of the older people in our community have a variety of problems ranging from ill health or insufficient income to lack of transportation, and even loneliness.

In recent years there has been more awareness of these needs of the older citizen, as a result, programs have been initiated that enable them to remain in their homes through supportive services, including the use of volunteers.

It has been a tremendous help to have an elected official such as Jan Gauger, a county commissioner who will listen and understand. She recognizes the need and value of long-range planning and the efficient use of the tax dollar.

College Board Should Communicate

Lincoln, Neb.

It is with growing concern that I have watched the recent controversy regarding the proposed location of the Southeast Community College (SCC) campus at 84th and O Streets. The Lincoln Star has justifiably raised questions concerning the proposed location. I also applaud the efforts of Senator Steve Fowler and the League of Women Voters in asking that the SCC reconsider the campus site and attempt to find one more centrally located. It seems to me that the SCC Board needs to be concerned not only with the accessibility for those students most likely to enroll at the school, but with the needs of the city of Lincoln as well. How many man hours and how many thousands of dollars have been spent, I wonder, in developing a comprehensive plan for the city of Lincoln? Can it so easily be ignored by an elected board of governors? Should it be?

But just as importantly, I am concerned with the apparent attitude of at least some members of the SCC Board. Mr. Robert Wekesser's statement about the people of this city who are concerned about the site lication and who help support the college with their tax dollars seems to reflect a frame of mind that allows little exchange of ideas or communication on a real level. And communication is vital between the various constituencies concerned — the board, the administration, the people of Lincoln, the students, and the faculty.

Perhaps future problems could be averted if (1) the SCC Board would hold hearings on matters of vital concerns which involve not just the school but other institutions and communities as well and (2) if the board would hold its meetings at a time when interested persons could attend, not in the afternoon, as is the current practice of the board. I for one feel citizen participation is vital in a representative democracy. Public officials must be accountable to the public. The statement that, "if they (the people) don't like it they'll just have to get out of the city" is not the desired solution to the problem. It is not acceptable.

John Y., Zorinsky Show Differences

Congressman John Y. McCollister took the offensive Thursday in a joint appearance with Omaha Mayor Edward Zorinsky before the Downtown Sertoma Club.

McCollister, the Republican nominee, said he is the only conservative in this year's Senate scrap with Zorinsky, the Democratic contender.

Zorinsky said his record as mayor of Omaha shows his commitment to "open, honest government" and to a balanced budget.

Surprisingly, club members had not a single question for the candidates following their presentations, so they used up the remaining time with a brief rebuttal of each other's remarks.

Zorinsky said he is either liberal nor conservative, but "responsible."

That, McCollister said, points up another "difference" between the two candidates and a change in Zorinsky's earlier posture.

At the beginning of the campaign, the mayor had suggested that both candidates were conservatives, the Omaha congressman said.

McCollister quoted Zorinsky as telling one audience that he favors most of the Humphrey-Hawkins full employment bill and that, he said, is an "inconsistent" position for a candidate who says he favors fiscal responsibility and less government bureaucracy.

Zorinsky, who earlier had told newsmen that he opposes the bill, did not respond to McCollister's allegation.

The bill represents "a blueprint for the greatest increase in bureaucracy since the New Deal," McCollister said.

Zorinsky criticized McCollister for his vote against the public works bill.

Some meaningful public employment work needs to be done, the mayor said.

In Omaha, for instance, he said, portions of the sewer system are "ready to collapse" and need replacement. Omaha still has some wooden sewers in use, he said.

McCollister said he would rather see the government take action to stimulate private employment than to have more people "work for the government."

State Debate Views Stick To Party Lines

By United Press International

Reaction among Nebraska political leaders to Wednesday night's debate between President Ford and Jimmy Carter was predictable, with Republicans claiming a Ford victory and Democrats giving Carter the edge.

William Barrett, Lexington, Ford's Nebraska campaign coordinator, called the second debate "most interesting."

"I was glad that it revolved more around rhetoric than statistics. I thought they were both stronger in their performance and I think as far as a winner or loser, Ford had the edge. I think he was in total command of the debate," Barrett said.

Democratic Gov. J. James Exon, who introduced Democratic vice presidential candidate Walter Mondale to an enthusiastic crowd of some 1,000 party faithful in the Omaha Hilton Hotel ballroom, said he thought Carter did "an exceptional job. He did better than I thought he would do."

Exon said the "presentation of the President was incredible," specifically concerning comments Ford made that Eastern European countries were not under Communist control."

"If he is that confused about Eastern Europe," Exon said, "It's no wonder our foreign policy is the way it is around the world."

Republican National Committeeman Bill Morrow, Omaha, said the second debate was even more clearly the President's than the first one.

"Ford was familiar with the subject and answered the questions specifically and precisely," he said. Morrow added he thought Carter's avoidance of some questions indicated "There were a number of things he would rather not talk about."

Republican National Committeewoman Pat Lahr Smith, Lincoln, said Ford showed his knowledge of foreign affairs.

"I think when Carter said the Republican administration has all style and no substance he was absolutely wrong," Mrs. Smith said.

Mrs. Kay Bosiljevac, a board member and regional coordinator of the National League of Families, POW-MIAS, said she was surprised that the question concerning the accountability of American servicemen missing in Vietnam was asked.

She said the fact that Carter said he would establish a task force immediately upon taking office to investigate the problem "shows he understands what the situation is."

She said Ford has been "wafiling" on establishing a task force, "But after tonight I wouldn't be a bit surprised if it's done tomorrow."

Oct. 15 Deadline Given 'Malpractice 5' Report

By United Press International

Secretary of State Allen Beermann said Thursday the "Malpractice 5" committee has until Oct. 15 to file necessary reports and documents for fund-raising efforts on behalf of State Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood.

Beermann said he sent out the forms and a copy of an attorney general's opinion which said the committee is in fact a political fund-raising organization and that it must by law file the forms.

"Malpractice 5" is a group of physicians from across the state who solicited money for Schmit's campaign. The five contended they weren't a political committee even though letters they sent to other physicians used the word "committee."

A copy of the letter was turned over to Beermann last week and he in turn gave it to the State Justice Department.

The five physicians included Dr. Warren Bosley of Grand Island, past president of the Nebraska Medical Association, Dr. Harlan Papenfuss of Lincoln, Dr. James Dunlap of Norfolk, Dr. Blaine H. Roffman of Omaha and Dr. H. E. Reese. Bosley said the letter was sent out six months ago.

Schmit, during this year's Unicameral session, acted as the sponsor of a medical malpractice insurance bill that was drafted by the medical association.

Beermann said if he does not receive the forms back from the physicians, the matter will be turned over to the attorney general for possible prosecution. He said if he does receive the forms, there would be no further legal action.

In a related event, Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln said the Unicameral's executive board will not hold a hearing requested by Schmit's general election opponent, Erwin Matulka of Valparaiso

"The attorney general took care of the problem. The executive board, at this point, really can't do anything about it," said Barnett, chairman of the executive board.

Matulka said he thought the executive board had a duty "to get to the bottom of this"

He requested in a letter to Barnett a hearing and a full accounting of all money received from physicians and others by Schmit.

Schmit was asked to comment on Matulka's letter, but he declined.

Medical Assistants Said Staying In Small Towns

State Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood said Thursday he has learned that smaller towns in Nebraska are having "great success" in attracting and keeping physicians assistants.

Schmit was the one who introduced the legislation needed to establish a physicians assistant training program at the University of Nebraska Medical Center.

"Of 32 physicians assistants who have stayed in Nebraska, 21 are now serving in towns of 4,000 population and under," The senator said. "Thirteen of the 21 are serving in towns with a population of 2,000 or less and eight are serving in towns with populations of 2,000 to 4,000."

In other words, Schmit said 32 of the 42 who have been trained have stayed in Nebraska and "That is a real credit to the program, the young people who enter it and the people of the smaller communities who help attract them to their towns."

Based on those facts, the senator said he sees the importance and future potential of the program from a small town standpoint as specialization in medicine continues to attract more and more doctors to metropolitan areas.

Anderson Opposes Thone Stand On Grain Industry Inspections

Pauline Anderson, Democratic congressional nominee in the 1st district, criticized her Republican opponent's stand on grain inspections.

Mrs. Anderson, a Lincoln resident, said Rep. Charles Thone in April favored federal grain inspections and weighing.

She said in September, however, Thone favored industry inspections when investigations began reaching inland ports and terminals.

"Private inspection by grain exchanges means that private industry inspects itself, and a well subsidized industry it is," she said. She likened Thone's position in September to favoring the fox guarding the chicken coop.

Exon Names New Appointees

Gov. J. James Exon Thursday appointed Gaynelle Goodrich of Omaha to the Judicial Nominating Commission for the Supreme Court, second district.

Mrs. Goodrich, wife of State Sen. Glenn Goodrich, fills the vacant term, expiring Jan. 1, 1979, created by the resignation of Omahan Alice Kalisek.

Exon appointed Ralph Lubeck of Stamford to the State Board of Educational Lands and Funds for a five-year term. He succeeds Wallace L. Farrar of Maywood, whose term expired Oct. 1.

The governor also named Orval Alber of Omaha to the Board of Barber Examiners. He replaces Fred Lanning of Omaha, who resigned to become the board manager-inspector. Alber's term expires Nov. 30, 1978.

Omaha Robber 'Cool Operator'

Omaha (UPI) — A bandit described as a "pretty cool operator" robbed the First Federal Lincoln Savings & Loan office Thursday of an estimated $3,000 and escaped five minutes before law officers arrived.

An FBI spokesman said the robber had a pistol stuck in his belt, but it wasn't brandished during the incident. It was Omaha's fourth bank robbery this year.

The spokesman said the bandit was clad in a light blue leisure suit and wore a blue and plaid fisherman's hat and dark sunglasses.

The spokesman said the bandit approached a female teller, handed her a plastic bag and instructed her to fill it up. When the teller had emptied her cash drawer, the bandit told her to go an adjacent drawer where another female teller was standing and to repeat the process.

After the female teller handed the bandit the bag, his last words to her were, "Now don't say anything."

Sources said an estimated $3,000 in currency was in the bag, and there were no security cameras in the bank.

The bandit rapidly departed on foot and was last seen headed in a northerly direction. Police arrived on the scene five minutes after the bandit left.

The FBI said a recent model, blue Oldsmobile was observed speeding from the area immediately following the robbery, and the FBI spokesman said, "This could possibly have been the getaway car."

The spokesman described the bandit as a "pretty cool operator. He was slightly nervous, but he knew what he was after."

The bandit was described as white, 5-feet-11-inches tall, from 28 to 30 years old and weighing 170 pounds. He had a mustache and medium length brown hair.

The savings and loan office is located on the southwest corner of a shopping center on West Dodge Road.

The last bank robbery in Omaha occurred when a bandit robbed the Mid-City Bank drive-in May 14. The case remains unsolved, but the FBI said it didn't appear to be related to Thursday's robbery.

County Board Endorses Basic Bypass Corridor

The Lancaster County Board unofficially approved the basic corridor of the proposed West Bypass during a Thursday staff meeting.

No votes were taken, but the board agreed to send a letter to the State Roads Department giving approval to the basic route plus a few minor changes suggested by the County-City Planning Department.

In the letter, Commissioner Bruce Hamilton will also give his view that other routes which would not use land in Wilderness Park near the Girl Scout day camp area should continue to be explored.

The letter will also outline Bob Colin's disagreement with the plan to leave Old Cheney Rd. as a deadend street. Colin thinks consideration should be given to extending Old Cheney Rd. through Wilderness Park as another access to the bypass from the east and south.

Doctor Drops Legal Bid; Boy Switched To Lincoln

Kearney (AP) — Action brought in Buffalo County District Court to force the parents of a young boy to allow doctors to give him blood transfusions has been dropped, Bruce Peterson, assistant county attorney, said.

The case involved Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Wysocki, Cozad, who cited religious beliefs for their refusal to allow their son Marcus, 6, to receive transfusions to treat a blood disease.

Dr. Kenton Shaffer, a Kearney pediatrician, won a temporary court order last month to force the parents to allow the transfusions. A hearing was to have been held Wednesday to consider a permanent order.

"The action has been dismissed because the parents transferred the boy to the care and custody of a Lincoln doctor," Peterson said. He said he did not know the condition of the boy.

Peterson said the disease is acute idiopathic thrombocytopenic purpura and that he understands "it is temporary, and with an increase in transfusion the boy stands a good chance of full recovery."

Hall County Grand Jury Asks To Be Disbanded

Grand Island (AP) — The Hall County grand jury, after meeting for seven full days, has requested that it be dismissed without "discovering any activity which would sustain a criminal indictment in any of the matters or areas of review."

The request came Wednesday. Court officials said such a filing must be approved by the district court, which convened the jury Sept. 27 to look into alleged irregularities in local government activities.

A citizen petition campaign had sought the call for the jury.

In its statement for discharge, the jury said 16 witnesses have been questioned, numerous records from Grand Island city government and the city's school district have been examined, three citizen complaints have been investigated and two anonymous letters to the grand jury have been reviewed.

In light of that work, the statement said, no evidence was found on which to base criminal indictments.

Driver Dies Of Heart Attack; Car Hits West Lincoln House

A Lincoln man died of a heart attack while driving his car in west Lincoln Thursday, causing his car to smash into a house at 102 West G St.

Authorities said John Yonker, 64, of 301 D St., was dead at the scene. A coroner's report confirmed that death resulted from a heart attack, not from injuries in the crash.

He is survived by his sister, Mrs. Kenneth Enright, of Rt. 6, Lincoln.

Police said damage to the foundation of the house and a fence was estimated at $2,000. The house is owned by Robert G. Luedtke.

NEA Scores Congressional Votes

Nebraska's congressional delegation in Washington didn't fare very well in their support of national education issues, according to the National Education Association.

The October issue of the national "NEA Reporter" featured a "Legislative Report Card" prepared by the NEA Government Relations Committee. Senators were ranked on their votes on eight key issues, and representatives were scored on 10 issues.

A right vote was scored if the ballot cast supported the NEA position; a wrong vote if it was against the NEA stand and a no-vote was recorded for any failure to cast a vote on the issue.

Sen. Carl Curtis of Nebraska was at the bottom of the list with seven wrong responses and one no-vote. Roman Hruska did a little better with two right answers and six wrong, the report said.

Representatives Charles Thone and Virginia Smith each had four right votes and six wrongs while John McCollister had three rights and seven wrong.

The NEA supported all eight issues which the senators were scored on. Two dealt with education appropriations, one providing $5 billion for emergency unemployment programs and supplemental funds and the other an override of a presidential veto.

Others dealt with full aid for handicapped students, child day care standards, public works employment, school lunch, Labor-Hew appropriations and a resolution on the budget.

The group opposed three of the House measures, all of which failed, and supported the other seven. A motion to send a school lunch bill back to committee; a motion to cut 5% from the Labor-HEW appropriations and a motion to strike out language covering state and local government employes in unemployment compensation all failed:

Education appropriations, handicapped education, several budget issues and child day care standards were all supported and passed, the report indicated.

The NEA recently endorsed the Carter-Mondale ticket, the association's first such endorsement in its 119-year history. In spite of that fact, several Republican representatives did well in the report card.

Senator James Pearson, R-Kan., scored with seven right and one wrong. Sen. Bob Dole, the Republican vice presidential candidate from Kansas, had four right, two wrong and two no-votes.

Democrats James, Abourezk and George McGovern of South Dakota each had eight right. Representative Ed Mezvinsky, D-Iowa, and Richard Bolling, D-Mo., each had ten right votes, according to the NEA.

Following is the complete scorecard for the representatives from Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and South Dakota. Their names, party affiliation, right, wrong and no-votes are listed in order.

Senate — Iowa: Culver (D) 7,0,1, Clark (D) 8,0,0, Kansas: Pearson (R) 7,1,0, Dole (R) 4,2,2; Missouri: Symington (D) 5,0,3, Eagleton (D) 8,0,0; Nebraska: Curtis (R) 0,7,1, Hruska (R) 2,6,0; S. D.: McGovern (D) 8,0,0, Abourezk (D) 8,0,0.

House — Iowa: Mezvinsky (D) 10,0,0, Blouin (D) 8,2,0, Grassley (R) 5,5,0, Smith (D) 8,2,0, Harkin (D) 6,2,2, Bedell (D) 7,3,0; Kansas: Sebelius (R) 4,6,0, Keys (D) 9,1,0, Winn (R) 6,4,0, Shriver (R) 7,1,2, Skubitz (R) 5,5,0; Missouri: Clay (D) 8,0,2, Symington (D) 7,0,3, Sullivan (D) 7,2,1, Randall (D) 7,2,1, Bolling (D) 10,0,0, Taylor (R) 2,8,0, Ichord (D) 3,6,1, Hungate (D) 7,2,1, Burlison (D) 6,4,0, Nebraska: Thone (R) 4,6,0, McCollister 3,7,0, Smith (R) 4,6,0; South Dakota: Pressler (R) 9,1,0, Abdnor (R) 4,6,1.

Former Lincolnite Found Dead In Illinois

Joliette, Ill. — The body of a 17-year-old female found murdered here Sunday has been identified as Jennifer Lynn Springman, a former Lincoln resident.

Miss Springman was born in Lincoln in October 1958 and moved with her parents to Downers Grove, Ill., in 1967.

According to the Will County, Ill., sheriff's office, two youths fishing in a rural area near an intersection at U.S. 30 and I-80 found the body.

A coroner's report said she'd been struck at least four times on the head with a blunt instrument and strangled. She had not been raped.

No arrests have been made.

The sheriff's office said the body was found Sunday. Her parents, Mrs. Karen Colosmo of Downers Grove, Ill., and Clark A. Springman of Westmount, Ill., identified the body Wednesday.

Springman formerly was an engineer for Cushman Motors and the family lived at 4110 Everett.

Miss Springman was a freshman at the George Williams College in Downers Grove, Ill.

Iowa Auditors Rip Indian Alcohol Unit

Des Moines (UPI) — A Sioux City facility that netted $462,746 from Iowa, Nebraska and federal authorities during the last two years was accused Thursday of "a complete lack of fiscal accountability" that prevented state auditors even from determining whether the organization's balance sheet was accurate.

In addition, state investigators have found billings totaling $26,054 that allegedly were charged to state and local governments for treatment of persons "who were not in treatment on the dates they were billed to the state."

The findings were contained in a report released by State Auditor Lloyd Smith and focused on the American Indian Council on Problem Drinking and Drug Addiction, Inc.; an organization operated by the same persons who were implicated last week in another alcoholism prevention project that state officials said "bilked" the state out of $32,000.

Smith said last week a group known as Social Science Research Consultants had signed a $32,113 contract with the State Division on Alcoholism to undertake a study of ongoing alcoholism research.

However, he said the product of the group's endeavors could have been obtained "for a total investment of 13 cents for postage" from a national clearinghouse on alcoholism.

Results of the latest audit — like the findings of the SSRC study last week — were forwarded to Iowa Attorney General Richard Turner for possible legal action.

The American Indian Council was accused of keeping "incomplete and inaccurate records," which hampered efforts by state auditors to investigate the group's operations over a 25-month period ending last June.

The audit revealed the center, which had total assets of $39,524, received $250,765 from the state of Iowa during the two years in question, in addition to $19,115 from Nebraska and $192,596 from the National Institutes of Health.

According to the state report, all of the group's financial transaction were handled from three separate bank accounts, one of which was not discovered until near the completion of the audit.

In addition, the organization allegedly borrowed $18,000 from the Association of American Indian Social Workers, Inc. SSRC was a division of the association, but the report said the nonprofit firm was not registered with the secretary of state's office as a legally constituted corporation.

Overall, the state audit cited numerous instances of unjustified billings to the state and discrepencies in payroll and other financial transactions.

BUFFALO COW . . . brought $510 at Fort Niobrara sale.

Ranchers Switching To Buffalo

Valentine (AP) — There's more profit in buffalo than beef, some buffalo and Longhorn buyers at the 33rd annual Fort Niobrara National Wildlife Refuge sale said.

"We're selling our beef cattle and going more and more to buffalo," said Naish Heim of Rockham, S.D. "They utilize what range there is more effectively and take very little feed in the winter."

The 57 buffalo sold for an average of $518 a head, up $45 from last year. Cows averaged about $506, bulls about $402 and calves $517, refuge spokesmen reported. The 65 Longhorns up for bidding sold for an average of $392, up from $300 last year.

Don Hight of Murdo, S.D., was the volume buyer with 12 head, 10 of them aged bulls and two of them yearlings. He has a herd of 1,500 now.

Four of the buyers were ranchers from the drought area of northeast South Dakota. They loaded 22 buffalo to take home.

Crossbred buffalo and beef are profitable, too.

"I've got a two-year-old 'herefalo' bull that I've been offered $50,000 for if he proves non-sterile," said Clarence Holmberg of Cresbard, S.D. He said he will get $1.50 a pound for buffalo carcasses.

A Ford Pierre, S.D., rancher who runs 3,000 head said the buffalo are almost disease resistant.

"So far, we've found the only problem is that you can't run buffalo near sheep," said Roy Houch. He said the University of South Dakota is researching the parasite buffalo pick up from sheep.

Critics Of Textbooks Speak Out Year Late

Omaha (AP) — More than one year ago, District 66 school officials expected controversy over new grade school English texts being tried at four schools, said James Findley, who headed the committee which developed the new program.

The controversy didn't come until this fall.

This fall, the books are being used at all elementary schools in the district for the first time and some parents have complained. The complaints resulted in a meeting at Hillside School.

Parents of Hillside and Westbrook School students attended and judging from applause after statements by those present, about 15 in the audience of 75 were critical of the books, and another 15 favored them.

Objections center on "Communicating," a textbook series by D. C. Heath Co. The series figured in a textbook dispute in Kanawaha County, W. Va., in 1974 which resulted in book burning and demonstrations by parents.

Here, some parents expressed similar objections, saying the books emphasize violence and dishonesty and could instill fear in young children.

Following the meeting, Findley said, "Maybe we should have involved more parents" in learning about the series before introducing it to the classrooms this year.

He said the complaints caught him by surprise.

In May 1975, the Omaha World-Herald ran six stories on the front page of a bonus news section on the books and the fact that they had been involved in the West Virginia dispute.

"I thought if there would be any criticism, it would come at that time," Findley said. "We have not had a word about it since."

Fremont Man Escapes Officers With Hands Cuffed Behind Back

Fremont (AP) — A Fremont man who was to have been sentenced Thursday for a felony conviction escaped, with his hands handcuffed behind his back, as he was being transported to jail Wednesday night as a suspect in another case.

Dodge County Sheriff Richard Wennstedt said George D. Reeves, 20, was to have appeared in court in connection with a charge of receiving stolen property. He darted from deputies as he was being escorted into the sheriff's department, where he was to have been questioned in connection with a drug raid earlier in the evening, authorities said.

PSC Denies Bell 'Interconnect' Changes

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Public Service Commission approved, then reconsidered and denied two Northwestern Bell Telephone rate change applications Thursday, after noting a third also related to competition with industry equipment.

The applications, if approved, would mean that the "customer who owns his own equipment will be treated the same" for ratepaying as those with Bell-supplied equipment, said Herb Sherdon, PSC communications director.

Sherdon had recommended that all the Bell applications be approved. He said afterward that equipment sold by phone industry competitors is "here to stay" in some form, but he raised the issue of its expansion — including consumer protection for quality and rates — tied in to industry impact.

PSC Chairman Duane Gay offered the motions to deny the three Bell requests. He stressed that they conform with Federal Communications Commission rules and that his opposition represented no reflection on Bell either way.

Rather, Gay said, he wants the commission to remain "consistent" in its majority stand against the FCC's opening up competition, referred to as "interconnect."

Gay said he's certain if the FCC ruling stands, it will cause "higher rates for the basic subscriber." However, if the U.S. Supreme Court hears the appeal of that decision and upholds it, Gay said he'll stand by it.

The vote to rescind their approval of two and then to deny all three Bell applications was 4-1 on each, with Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont voting no. Aye votes were cast by Gay, Robert Marland of Lincoln, James Munnelly of Omaha and Jack Romans of Ord.

Rasmussen said, "The Nebraska Supreme Court has said we must allow for interconnect. All we're doing is providing a tariff" for it, without which those buying their own equipment would be subject to different or unknown charges.

Gay said the applications would "only change the tariff."

Rasmussen said Bell would "be in violation" if it charges "different rates for the same service," which the applications would correct.

But Rasmussen said the PSC was denying the proposals "without the right of a hearing," which he submitted is improper.

In other business, the commission dismissed the application by John E. Neylon of Lincoln for continued authority to operate a Class A air taxi service. PSC staff attorney Adrian Fiala said the matter, pending since 1972, brought "no response" from Neylon in recent months to PSC notification of requirements.

Romans said, "I would like it postponed for two weeks." Some commissioners said Neylon has had enough time to satisfy the rules. Romans said, "It's only been in here, as far as I'm concerned, for 18 months."

Gay, Munnelly and Rasmussen voted to dismiss the application. Marland and Romans abstained.

The commission also revoked operating certificates, because of noncompliance with PSC reporting rules, of:

Stanley L. Berven, South Sioux City; Terry D. Bushhousen of Bushhousen Construction Co., Ashton; Midwest Feed Transport, Omaha; Nick's Trucking, Omaha; Gale Richardson and Melvin Leonard of L&R Trucking, Waterloo; and Grant Trucking Co., Valentine.

Indian Revenue Loss Not Great

By REGINA J. HILLS
United Press International

Preliminary estimates indicate Nebraska's tax revenue will suffer only slightly from a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling exempting Indians from certain taxes.

As a result of the high court's decision, the Nebraska Revenue Department has ruled that Indians living on reservations are exempt from paying income, sales, personal property, motor vehicle and cigarette taxes.

Statistics examined Thursday indicate Nebraska's three reservations, Omaha and Winnebago in Thurston County and Santee Sioux in Knox County, together could cost the state less than $1 million in lost tax revenue. Sales tax losses, for which figures are most readily available, appear to be less than $50,000.

Detailed figures on what percentage of the state's taxes affected by the ruling are generated on reservations were not available.

The greatest impact from the exemptions will be felt in Thurston County because more than 50% of the county's 7,000 residents are Indians living on the Omaha and Winnebego reservations, said County Treasurer Lois Appleton.

Mrs. Appleton said rough estimates indicate the exemptions could cut revenue from personal property, real estate and motor vehicle taxes on the two reservations by about $150,000.

Mrs. Appleton said she has urged State Tax Commissioner William Peters to ask the governor to initiate legislation next year aimed at providing financial assistance to the county for the revenue it will lose because of the exemptions.

Sam Key, Knox County treasurer, said he doesn't expect the exemptions to have much impact on the county's tax revenue.

Sales and income taxes go directly into the state fund, according to Gary Chunka, deputy state tax commissioner, while the counties receive some of the motor vehicle tax revenue and all of the real estate taxes.

Peters and Gov. J. James Exon were not available for comment and Chunka said he doesn't know if the two discussed Mrs. Appleton's request.

Taxes generated in Thurston and Knox Counties last year amounted to $244,587 and $655,785 respectively for sales; $62,290 and $98,274 for motor vehicles; $305,849 and $422,984 for income; and $2,163,510 and $4,092,606 for real property, Chunka said.

Sales tax revenue collected by Pender and Walthill — both on the Omaha reservation — totaled about $199,000 last year, he said. Winnebago — on the Winnebago reservation — generated $18,594 in sales tax, he said.

Chunka said Pender, Walthill and Winnebago were the only Thurston County towns whose sales tax receipts were available because he said the amount generated by the other towns was so low it is classified as confidential.

The sales tax generated collectively last year by Bancroft, Macy, Rosalie, Thurston and Emmerson, the other towns on the Omaha and Winnebago reservations, totaled about $26,884, he said.

Felix White Jr., Nebraska Indian Commission director, said Winnebago's population is about 92% Indian, Walthill's is about 10% Indian and Pender's is less than 1% Indian.

Consequently, with $18,594 of the 2.5% sales tax generated in Winnebago and $62,422 in Walthill last year, the state conceivably could stand to lose some $20,000 this year from Winnebago and Walthill with a 3% sales tax. Estimates on the other exemptions were not available.

In addition, the state has to contend with revenue loss from the Santee Sioux reservation.

Chunka said $6,358 in sales tax was generated last year in Center, the only town on the Santee Sioux reservation for which figures were available.

Estimates on the state's sales tax loss in center could not be determined because White said he didn't know how many of the town's 111 residents are Indians.

But White said the exemptions probably won't hurt the state or the counties because the reservations are on federal lands, and federal funds probably can be obtained to make up the revenue loss.

In addition, Chunka said the Revenue Department will initiate a study to determine what impact the exemptions will have on the state. If the losses are substantial, he said, they will be reported to the State Board of Equalization when it meets in November to review tax rates.

LTS BUS DRIVER . . . Ms. Johnson lifted from crashed bus on stretcher.

School Bus Driver Said To Be Ticketed

Lincoln police said the driver of a grade school bus which collided with a city bus at 14th and L St. Thursday morning will be issued a citation for violating the automatic signal.

Donald Puckett, 23, the driver of the St. Mary's bus, apparently ran the red light on L St., witnesses told police.

Carrying 29 children to school, the bus ran into a Lincoln Transportation System bus northbound on 14th St. Only the driver, Carolyn Johnson, was in that vehicle.

The LTS bus jumped the curb, ran over several trees and street signs before hitting an armored car and smashing to a stop in the First National Bank Drive-In.

Ms. Johnson, 40, told police she was thrown to the floor by the impact. Police had to kick in the back door to get Ms. Johnson out of the bus.

She suffered bruises and cuts and was released from a local hospital after being treated for her injuries.

Several children reported injuries and all but two were treated by a nurse for bumps and bruises.

Shandel Hull, 7, lost two baby teeth and was taken to a dentist. Tracy Drennan had her arm X-rayed for a possible break.

Sister Regina Wagner, St. Mary's principal, said two other children reported apparent injuries. She said the school bus was well padded, which may have helped prevent additional injuries. St. Mary's school is located at 15th and K St.

Officer Tim Carmichael, who investigated the accident, said Thursday his report shows that the school bus was traveling about 30 miles per hour west on L St.

The driver, Puckett, who was not hurt, told police he had the green light when he suddenly saw the LTS bus drive through the intersection in front of him. He said he was unable to stop.

Ms. Johnson also told police she was driving through the intersection with a green light when the collision occurred.

The LTS bus jumped the curb and ran west for a block before hitting an armored car and a glass covered wall of the bank drive in building at 13th St.

Larry Blackburn, driver of the armored car, said he was in the bank's parking lot when he saw the LTS bus careening toward him. He said he was unable to avoid the collision.

Two tellers and a few customers were inside the bank at the time, but none was injured when the bus crashed into the bank.

The bus caused apparent structural damage to the bank. Police placed the damage at $26,000.

Damage to the armored car was estimated at $900. The LTS bus, purchased in 1972 as part of the new city bus fleet, received about $5,000 worth of damage. Damage to the school bus was estimated at $2,000, police said.

Because the St. Mary's bus was extensively damaged, Sister Regina said alternate transportation for students will have to be sought until the bus is repaired.

Soviet Grain Buy Passes Minimum

Washington (UPI) — Despite a near-record crop of its own, the Soviet Union has bought another 350,000 metric tons of corn from the United States and a U.S. exporter is negotiating to sell even more corn and wheat, the Agriculture Department announced Thursday.

The latest purchase brought the Soviet Union above the minimum six million tons of grain it must purchase under a long-term grain supply agreement with the United States.

Richard E. Bell, assistant agriculture secretary, told a news conference that the department has revised downward its previous estimates of the total Soviet crop to an anticipated 215 million metric tons because of recent frost there.

Bell spoke to reporters after the department announced the new corn sale which brings its total grain purchases from the United States under the agreement to 6.3 million tons.

Under the agreement, the Soviets must buy at least six million tons of grain, to be divided evenly between corn and wheat. The Soviets must buy another 1.3 million tons to even out its purchases since it already has bought 3.8 million tons of corn and 2.5 million of wheat. Bell said he expected them to buy at least 500,000 tons more and reach the eight-million-ton limit.

A close watch has been kept on U.S. grain purchases by other nations since 1972 when the Soviet Union secretly bought a huge wheat supply, causing a U.S. shortage which led to higher prices in stores. Wheat is a major factor in the U.S. economy.

Since the U.S. grain production this year will exceed 225 million tons, the Soviets are allowed under the agreement to buy up to eight million tons.

One reason Bell gave for the maximum Soviet grain purchase is a forecast of a poor Soviet potato harvest because of wet weather this year. Potatoes are a major livestock feed crop in the Soviet Union, and in times of shortage, grain has to be substituted.

In an apparent effort to stave off rumors of a shortage, the Agriculture Department announced that "this country's potato supplies will be more than adequate due to a domestic crop appreciably larger than last year's 326 million hundredweight."

Lincoln Man In Fair Condition Following Car-Cycle Accident

A Lincoln man was in fair condition at Lincoln General Hospital Thursday night following a collision between his motorcycle and a car at the intersection of 19th and L Sts. Thursday afternoon.

Richard L. Parr, 21, of 1829 M St., suffered a head concussion, facial cuts and bruises, and a broken leg in the mishap.

The driver of the car was Eddie L. Ellis, 27, of 622 S. 21st St., police said.

Murderer Sentenced

Dubuque, Iowa (UPI) — Terry J. Beverlin, 22, Dubuque, was sentenced to 40 years in prison for the second degree murder of his wife, Donna, 20, last February.

Project Will Bring Children To Senses

Lincoln public school students will get an extra Halloween surprise this year.

Because the spook day follows a two-day vacation for students, many school buildings will be converted to "sensory experience chambers," according to arts coordinator Roger Van Deventer.

Van Deventer met with about 35 representatives of parent-teacher organizations from schools Thursday morning to discuss creation of the displays which will key on the senses of hearing, sight, smell and touch.

"They won't necessarily be scary," he explained, "but will incorporate some of the principles we tend to shy away from in classroom instruction. They will deal more directly with sensory perception, a vital life function."

The parent groups are being urged to develop displays which can utilize household items like Christmas lights and be built into a unique series of experiences, he added.

As an added bonus, Van Deventer said, we will get to experiment with some new uses for school equipment, like opaque projectors and record players. These will be used to create the sight and sound imagery.

The parent groups are scheduled to report their plans and times and locations of the "chambers" will be announced later, he added.

Inmate's 'Good Time' Suit Dismissed

Lancaster District Court Judge Dale Fahrnbruch Thursday dismissed a Nebraska Penal Complex inmate's contention that he should be released from prison under the state's "good time" law.

Doyle Dixon, who was sentenced to serve five years in prison for burglary, filed the lawsuit against Robert Parratt, warden of the penal complex.

Dixon, who was sentenced by the Douglas County District Court in September, 1973, for burglary claimed he was eligible for release because he has served 35 months of his prison term. Dixon claimed that LB 567, passed by the 1975 Legislature, contained a retroactive clause making him eligible for parole.

As a result, Dixon claimed in a suit he prepared himself, Parratt was confining him unlawfully at the penitentiary.

The so-called "good time" law clarified the time used to figure the availability of parole.

Judge Fahrnbruch said that the law, passed last year, is not retroactive in its application. Dixon was found guilty of burglarizing the First Mate Lounge in Omaha on May 29, 1973.

Fahrnbruch said if portions of the law were applied retroactively, it would constitute ex post facto laws which are prohibited by the Nebraska Constitution.

Also, if retroactively applied, he said the law would constitute an encroachment of the Legislature upon the judicial branch of government in violation of the separation of powers doctrine.

The law also couldn't be applied retroactively, Fahrnbruch said, because the Nebraska Constitution grants the power to reduce sentences to the executive branch of government, not the legislative.

Union Calls Off Boycott Of Russell Stover Candy

Washington (UPI) — A labor-backed consumer boycott of Russell Stover candy was revoked Thursday after the Bakery and Confectionary Workers agreed tentatively to an initial contract covering 700 of the firm's employes.

The nationwide boycott was imposed last March in an effort to compel the company to negotiate with the union. It had the backing of the AFL-CIO.

"All boycott activities and picketing are to cease at once," union President Daniel E. Conway declared in a telegram to AFL-CIO President George Meany. "This is a great victory for our international union and the labor movement as a whole.

All lawsuits and countersuits between the union and the company also will be withdrawn, the union said, and unfair labor practice charges will be resolved.

The terms of the new contract were withheld pending ratification by workers at the Russell Stover plant in Lincoln, Neb. The union said the company also had expressed a willingness to negotiate contracts at other plants in South Carolina and Colorado and the Allentown, Pa., distribution center.

Stover employes in Lincoln had voted in September 1974 to be represented by the Bakery and Confectionary Workers Union.

State Liquor Revenues Up Last Month, Year-To-Date

The Nebraska Liquor Control Commission reported Thursday its revenues for September totalled $847,241, up by almost $36,200 compared to the same month in 1975.

The September sum also increased from August collections of $842,898, according to Commission Chairman Ed Robinson.

Total revenue from Jan. 1 to Oct. 1, 1976, increased by about $200,000 compared to the same period a year earlier. The current cumulative total is $7,591,818.

The September 1976 revenues by categories were: Alcohol, wine and spirits — $479,756, beer — $360,934, license fees — $1,641, and registration fees — $2,012. Those totals exceeded comparable receipts in September 1975.

AA Helping More People, More Places Than Ever

Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) started in Lincoln in the 1940s with a small downtown store as a meeting place but it has been in the last decade that AA has mushroomed.

"Ten years ago, a handful of people were meeting once each week in an AA meeting," Jack Wood, board chairman, said.

Now there are 23 AA meeting weekly in all parts of the city and at various times of the day; nine Alanon meetings for spouses of alcoholics and two Alateen groups for children of alcoholics.

"Our growth rate has even outstripped the national growth," Wood said.

It was because of this rapid growth rate that AA opened a central office on Oct. 1 at 620 N. 48th, Room 105. Before Oct. 1, people calling the AA central office reached an answering service. That number now — 464-8851 — will expedite service to the problem drinker and those who concern themselves with them.

Since the AA structure does not permit central office operation, a nonprofit corporation was formed, working with an approximate budget of $10,000 for its first year of operation. AA is financed by private donations from AA members, Wood said, and does not permit outside funding sources.

Garage Saved From Damage As Youth Moves Burning Car

A west Lincoln youth pushed his burning automobile from his garage Thursday, saving the structure from serious damage before firemen arrived at the scene.

Robert Barbour, 16, was working on his car's leaky carburetor in the garage of his home at 901 W. Dawes. When he started the engine, the car backfired and the car was set afire.

Young Barbour pushed the car out into the street before flames could spread, then put out the fire before firefighters arrived. There was considerable damage to the car and smoke damage to the garage, firemen reported.

Newspaper Plan Shelved By City

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Plans to publish a city-wide, bi-monthly newspaper apparently have been dropped by the City Urban Development Department.

The newspaper, which would have had an estimated 50,000 circulation, would have cost about $20,000 to $25,000 a year.

The newspaper, along with other publishing plans including pamphlets, flyers, newspaper and radio advertising and a bi-weekly newspaper for neighborhood organizations, aroused criticism when presented to the City Council Sept. 28.

Plans for dropping the newspaper were announced at a meeting of the Urban Development task force by department head George Chick and Mayor Helen Boosalis.

The mayor said the department has come up with an alternative to publishing the newspaper by turning to the Sunday Journal-Star to disseminate the information.

She said that the newspaper indicated it will without charge regularly set aside a special part of the paper for information intended for citizens active in neighborhood organizations.

The information would be written by newspaper reporters, which Chick said would be a safeguard against fears that the department would use it as a political organ.

"We'll see how far everything will work out," Chick told the task force. If the arrangement is not satisfactory, he said, the idea of the newspaper could be revived or an insert could be published occasionally to supplement the regular feature.

Conspicuous in his absence from the meeting was Councilman Bob Sikyta, one of the most vocal critics of the publishing scheme.

"The man who wanted the meeting and promoted it isn't here," Council Chairman Max Denney noted as council members met with the task force. Sikyta reportedly was out of town.

But Denney said that he too was worried about the scope of the publishing plans, at one point muttering that the material would be used to line birdcages.

Councilman Bob Jeambey said that he interpeted Sikyta's comments on the plans as fearing that a tax-supported publication would be used to try to influence the council and other parts of government.

"I happen to think that's a great way to use tax money," Jeambey said.

"I don't know that we'll ever resolve the philosophical differences," he said. "I don't want you to be intimidated by his objections."

At one point in discussion on the publications, part of an overall "citizen participation plan," Mayor Boosalis said there should be no fear that she had intended to use the eight-page newspaper to boost her administration.

"That's utterly preposterous," she said.

South Salt Creek Redlining Alleged

By JIM CAMDEN
Star Staff Writer

A national organization that has lead the fight against unfair lending practices has released data that it says shows an area in Lincoln is redlined.

A preliminary survey by National Peoples Action, based in Chicago, lists the amount of money lent for home mortgages and home improvement loans in two areas of 25 cities across the country. Figures from two lending institutions are cited.

Lincoln areas listed are Southeast Lincoln and South Salt Creek. According to the survey, First Federal Savings and Loan loaned $1,145,928 in Southeast Lincoln (Zip Code 86516) and $39,307 in the South Salt Creek area (Zip Code 68508). First National Bank loaned $116,999 and $10,286 in those respective areas.

Tom Fisher, an attorney for First National, said any conclusions drawn from such evidence would be "unfair" because the figures don't take a look at the entire lending picture in Lincoln.

Home mortgage figures for a particular zip code don't give an accurate look at all the lending activity in that area, he added, because other loans, such as commercial and industrial loans, are not taken into account.

Phil Page, a spokesman for National Peoples Action, said local anti-redlining groups collected figures from the lending institutions and submitted figures from one bank and one savings and loan company. The groups picked one area they thought was redlined, and one area they thought wasn't.

But the South Salt Creek area, which the figures say is redlined, is only part of that zip code. That postal entity stretches from Oak Street to D Street between First and 19th Streets, and includes most of downtown Lincoln.

A postal service spokesman said there are about 5,300 private delivery points in that area and about 1,400 business delivery points. But many of the private boxes are part of multiple-family units such as apartment complexes.

The other zip code, he said, is one of the most rapidly expanding areas in Lincoln.

Page said the figures were only a preliminary survey. A more detailed look at local lending situations would be forthcoming in a few months.

Rate Review Plans Lean On Hospitals

Members of the Nebraska Hospital Association (NHA) voted Thursday to discontinue its rate review activities within six months unless more of the state's major hospitals agree to participate in the program.

The rate review committee was established as a pilot program in 1972 and was opened Jan. 1, 1974, to 98 Nebraska hospitals on a voluntary basis.

Although "the program has proven itself and has been a valuable adjunct of the Nebraska Hospital Association," committee chairman Jack Stiles said, "each year there has been only minor growth."

Consequently, Stiles asked that the committee be abolished unless the number of hospitals reviewed represent at least 75% of the total hospital budget dollars in Nebraska.

Also, since officials in hospitals not now participating had "indicated that some technical aspects of the plan were unnecessary," Stiles said, the committee should be allowed to revise some of its rules and regulations to increase participation.

However, the revisions should "not weaken it (the committee) as a rate review mechanism," he said.

Currently, only 28 of Nebraska's 98 eligible hospitals have participated in the rate review program, said Norman Clemm of the NHA Reimbursement Plan staff.

According to Stiles, these 28 hospitals represent only about $90 million in hospital budget dollars out of an approximate $270 million total.

"A significant amount of money is being spent on hospitalization," he said, and the rate review committee is "looking at the amount of money and not necessarily the number of hospitals participating."

He added that recently 23 additional hospitals — including two in Omaha — have indicated they plan to participate in rate review, however, none of these are major hospitals.

Although none of Omaha's 10 hospitals now participate in the program, Stiles said there are other large facilities in outstate Nebraska which are major hospitals in their areas but have not submitted their rates for certification.

If the rate review committee is abolished, Stiles said, Nebraska hospitals would have to "prepare themselves for some alternative which probably would be some form of legislation — either state or federal — for rate review."

Volunteer Job Option Endorsed By Common

A program in which people charged with minor crimes are given the option of doing volunteer work instead of spending time in jail or paying a fine was endorsed Thursday by the city-county common.

Both city and county governments are contributing to the cost of the program, which has a proposed budget of $23,083.80 for the next fiscal year.

The Junior League of Lincoln, sponsors of the program, and Lancaster County Judge Jeffre Cheuvront urged members of the city council and County Board to continue financial support of the program.

Sponsors are submitting an application for $17,738 in federal funds for the program's second year.

Although the program eventually won unanimous approval, council chairman Max Denney said after one more year federal funding for the program will expire.

He complained that programs of this type, which induce officials to approve programs because "they look free" because of the federal program, wind up being a drain on local tax funds.

The Junior league is presently furnishing volunteers who interview people being considered for the volunteer work, but it plans to discontinue that practice when the program is firmly established.

Cheuvront said, however, that he hopes that other volunteers can be found in the community. And he said that if the program can be operated for an expenditure of $50 to $100 program that goes through it, he thinks it is a good program.

Pam Fry, director of the program, said that through the "Court Referral Program" a total of 4,200 hours in volunteer work have been provided to community agencies.

Agencies that have participated, she said, are the Cedars Home for Children, mental health agencies, the Lincoln Labor Co-op and and Citizens for Environmental Improvement.

A "hidden cost" of the program was pointed out by County Board member Bruce Hamilton, who said that the court takes in fewer fines because of the program.

Cheuvront said, however, that courts should not be looked on as a source of revenue. And a lot of the people that go through the program can't afford fines he said, like a woman with five children whose husband has left her and who is charged with writing bad checks.

Hendee Named President Of State Hospital Group

Darold Hendee, administrator of Memorial Hospital and Home in Sidney, was named president of the Nebraska Hospital Association Thursday at the group's annual meeting.

Other new officers include: Jack E. Stiles, vice president; Dick L. Easley, Ogallala, secretary; and Leonard Frodyma, Osmond, treasurer.

Association members named to the board of directors were Rick Gamel, Chadron, Kenneth Bors, Crete, and John Fishel, Hastings.

James A. Canedy, Omaha, was named delegate to the American Hospital Association convention and Eugene G. Edwards was named alternate delegate.

United Way Pledge Total $737,988

The 1977 Lincoln-Lancaster United Way campaign stands at 46% with $737,988 in pledges. The campaign goal is an even $1.6 million.

The total to date was announced Thursday at the second report and recognition meeting.

Companies cited for making their goals were Dana Cole and Co., DuTeau Chevrolet, Nebraska Litho, Gateway Bank, Misle Chevrolet, Woodmen Accident and Life, Bryan Memorial Hospital, Northwestern Metal, Wells and Frost, Ayres and Associates, Square D, Cengas, Central Telephone and Utilities, Schneiber Fine Foods, KLMS Radio and First Federal Savings and Loan.

Other firms honored were Meginnis Ford, Havelock Bank, Yankee Hill Brick, Gooch Foods, Beatrice Foods, Citibank, Lincoln Credit Bureau, Davis, Fenton, Stange and Darling, A. C. Nielsen, Milton Roy Co., Union Insurance, State Farm Insurance, Magee's, Midwest Life Nebraska and Sizte Securities.

The next report will be made Oct. 21.

Records Unit To Meet

The Nebraska State Records Board will meet at 2 p.m. Oct. 21 in the Capitol, Room 2230, according to Secretary of State Allen J. Beermann. He is also state records administrator.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

Mazatlan — Well, they've put in parking meters at Acapulco. And I suppose in no time they'll come to Mazatlan.

We came around the headlands this morning. Dead slow. The big white "Pacific Princess" parted a bubbling path of white water. From the deck I could see the high hill at the end of Olas Altas. ("Where they used to shoot prisoners, Senor. Bandits. Patriots. Revolutionaries. Federales. Anybody they felt like shooting.")

The corner where the wildest cantina in Mexico used to be.

The old Hotel Belmar where we stayed. They kept two boa constrictors — they're better than cats to keep mice on the run.

Bob O'Brien and I, vacationing on free passes from Southern Pacific of Mexico. We were $35-a-week reporters. But in Mexico we were ricos — rich men.

After a few Mexican beers, we went sightseeing. Hired three horse-drawn carriages. One for O'Brien. One for me. One for a couple of hired guitar players.

We rode down the main street musically. And barefoot boys ran alongside admiring our class.

"Viva los millionarios!" they shouted.

Those were the days!

☆ ☆ ☆

Mazatlan has been growing faster than any other town on Mexico's West Coast. For miles along Playa del Norte, luxury hotels are laid on pure white sand under a Mexican sky that is always pale blue silk.

"Everything is modern. Muy moderna," said the taxi driver.

Mexico is terribly proud of being modern. Actually takes out some things of colonial days that would be better left alone.

☆ ☆ ☆

I expect that's why they like parking meters. For years we parked where the street cop directed us. Tipped him a peso when we left.

In a way he was selling parking space. But cops were underpaid. Parking spaces — (and an occasional fine, paid on the spot) — kept him in daily bread.

If you parked without fixing it up with the cop, he didn't bawl you out. He didn't write you a ticket. He took a screwdriver from his pocket. Unscrewed your license plate and took it to the police station.

It was a summons you didn't over look.

After some 30 years, the Mexican peso dropped the other day from a solid 12.50 to the U.S. dollar. Hotels and banks are giving us 19 to 20 pesos for a dollar.

Car dealers will not sell cars on time payments. Who knows what the payment will buy a year from now? Contractors cannot contract. Taxi companies, truck owners, road builders, don't know what tires and repairs will cost this time next year.

"Moderna," said the taxi driver. "Like the English pound. The French money. Even the United States dollar goes up and down."

Sharp Building Lobby Hostess 'Fantastic Lady'

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

"Can't you just once say you feel terrible?"

The Sharp Building patron who said that probably wishes he could take it back, because lobby hostess Eve Geer — that "fantastic lady" — is retired now.

No longer will the hundreds of people who pass through the Sharp Building's lobby hear her cheerful greetings, words of encouragement and good wishes at the end of the day.

Eve retired last week after more than 25 years with the Sharp Building, first as an elevator operator and later as the lobby hostess.

It was never too much for Eve to assist a handicapped person in a wheelchair get to the doctor's office or to accompany a blind person to his destination in the building.

"It's nothing special — it's just my job and the only way I know how to work," she explained last week.

"I'm just happy and thankful for what I have and I love people," the mother of three said.

Noting that her cheerful outlook is part of the philosophy her mother taught her, Eve recalled how her mother could make a meal for her husband and 12 children on what people would throw away today.

Having grown up in a sod house on a homestead between North Platte and Maxwell, Eve said her mother always believed in the old saying:

"Nothing is so bad but what it could be worse." And Eve still feels this is a good philosophy of life.

"You just take the bitter with the sweet," she said.

But most of her job has been sweet, she contended. She really didn't want the job when a friend asked her to come to the Sharp Building to run an elevator because they were short of help.

"I told them that if I didn't like it I wouldn't stay, but I've loved every bit of it . . . of all the jobs I've had this is what I've liked the best."

She's seen considerable development in many people at the Sharp Building — some lawyers who started out as law clerks now are senior partners in the firm — Eve says she's considered writing a book about the building and its people.

However, she says for now she will be content to stay at home with her husband on their acreage near Waverly and do some of the things she's wanted to do for sometime.

But if she ever writes the book, it could be a best seller, she adds with a twinkle in her eye.

WELL-WISHER . . . Bill Hanrahan says goodbye to Eve.

'Faking It' In Bedroom Not Best Solution

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: A note to the lady who was considering divorce because she was tired of "faking in the bedroom" for eight years:

I've been married for 30 years to a dear man who (I hope) is not aware that his love-making is far from satisfying. But I would "fake it" for another 90 years rather than hurt this beautiful man who cannot, or will not, discuss our sex life. He would be devastated at the thought of how unfulfilled and frustrated he has left me. And he would be crushed by the idea that I thought he needed counseling.

After all this, time, I'm sure part of the fault was mine.

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: Therapists in the human sexuality program of many medical schools inform me that many couples who have been married for more than 30 years have been helped tremendously by counseling. But if you "know" that your husband is not a candidate for counseling, and you are willing to "fake it" forever, you have handled your problem well enough to suit yourself.

I would not, however, advise anyone who has been married for only eight years to "fake it." In these enlightened times, a spouse commits a grave error in judgment to "fake" satisfaction when real satisfaction can be achieved through education.

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday I received a chain letter in the mail. With it were strict instructions to make six copies and send it to six of my friends, or "something" will happen to me.

What can happen if I don't?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: You will save 78 cents and a lot of time.

DEAR ABBY: This is for EMBARRASSED. She said her three grown children were raised in a good Christian home, but one plays with a rock group and looks like a bum, another lives with a married man in Mexico, and another is into a far-out religious cult that doesn't believe in money (although she's always asking her parents for some to feed her and her "brothers and sisters"). The problem was what to tell people when friends ask what her kids are doing.

What a coincidence! We have three grown children who turned out very much like EMBARRASSED'S, but we aren't embarrassed. When people ask about them, we give them a complete rundown, and the usual response is: "That's nothing. Wait till I tell you what MY kids are doing!"

Eating Chip Sends Her To Jail Cell

Dallas (UPI) — Mrs. J. E. Ellis still has a hard time believing she was arrested for eating a tortilla chip in a pizza parlor.

"I was amazed. I mean really amazed," she said. "I was just having a little nibble."

For her "crime," she was arrested, put in a jail cell for an hour and had to post $100 bond to get out.

Mrs. Ellis said she and her husband and three children went to a pizza cafe last Aug. 19. "They were dying for pizza, but I wanted Mexican food."

She went next door to a Mexican restaurant and brought her dinner back to the pizza parlor so she could sit with her family. She didn't plan to eat there but a hunger pang hit.

"I took a tortilla chip out of the sack and started munching on it."

An employe of the restaurant told Mrs. Ellis it was against the law to bring food into the restaurant. He told her she would have to leave.

"I did not refuse to leave. I wasn't even rude," she said, "but I did want to know why the people at the next table who brought cake and ice cream for a birthday celebration weren't being asked to leave."

About five minutes later two police cars and three officers arrived.

"They were unsure what to do. They could either issue a citation or take me in to jail. One of them got out a book and started looking for something that would tell them what to do. Then they decided to take me to jail.

"For eating a tortilla chip? I was amazed."

She was charged with criminal trespassing — remaining on the premises after being given notice to leave.

"They put me in a cell with a teen-age shoplifter. My husband and our lawyer came down and post ($100) bond in about an hour."

A municipal court judge dismissed the charge because there were no complaining witnesses.

Food Costs Decline As Meat Falls

Spurred by lower meat prices, overall food costs declined this month at three chain stores and one locally owned store in Lincoln.

The Lincoln Star survey of 17 food items showed that this month's average total of $13.95 is 2.6% or 37 cents less than last month's cost of $14.32.

And although October's cost is 2.2% or 30 cents more than the food total six months ago ($13.65), it is 4.6% or 64 cents less than the $14.59 tally of one year ago.

According to a recent National Livestock and Meat Board report, high supplies of beef are causing more cattlemen to market their herds. Consequently, beef is averaging 20 cents less a pound this month than a year ago.

In addition, pork, which was scarce due to a 1975 cutback in production, is becoming more plentiful because of a 16% production increase between December 1975 and May 1976.

The report went on to say farmers announced last spring that they planned to increase production by another 17% by November. This pork should be on the market by the end of December.

Locally, pork loin chops decreased 22 cents, from an average price of $1.90 per pound last month to $1.68 this month. The current price also is 44 cents less than the $2.12 cost one year ago.

Another pork item, bacon, also has exhibited a significant decline. This month's price of $1.96 per pound is 10 cents less than the $2.06 cost one month ago, but 50 cents under the $2.46 price of last October.

Overall lower pork prices also may cause the price of bacon, which has hovered around $2 a pound for about a year, to further decline this fall.

Although the cost of ground beef increased eight cents to 78 cents per pound during the past month, the current price is still 13 cents under the 91-cent per pound price one year ago.

On the other hand, the price of round steak dropped 20 cents this month. The average price was $1.51 per pound; however, one store was selling round steak at a special price of $1.08 per pound.

The price of chicken increased six cents to 62 cents per pound this month. Predictions are that the cost of chicken will decrease during the fall as more people begin buying beef and pork, causing the chicken demand to fall.

Other items sporting increases this month were milk, eggs, green beans, pork and beans and peanut butter.

Milk, currently at 90 cents per half gallon, is two cents more than last month, and 10 cents more than the 80-cents per half gallon price recorded last October.

Another dairy case item also has experienced a substantial increase during the past year. Currently, one dozen Grade A Large eggs is costing consumers 82 cents, one cent more than last month. Last October shoppers were paying 66 cents per dozen, 16 cents under the current price.

Green beans rose one cent to 36 cents for each 16-ounce can since last month, while a 16-ounce can of pork and beans increased by three cents to 32 cents and a 12-ounce jar of peanut butter jumped two cents to 76 cents.

Items maintaining stable prices during the past month included: spaghetti at 52 cents for a 16-ounce package; flour at $1 for a five-pound bag; peaches at 48 cents for a 16-ounce can; ketchup at 52 cents for a 14-ounce bottle; and frozen peas at 59 cents for a 12-ounce package.

Due to an advertised special of 48 cents for a six and one-half ounce can of tuna at one store, the overall price of tuna dropped five cents to 66 cents. Last year at this time, tuna was selling for 63 cents for the same size can.

Although not included in the survey totals, sugar sported significant increases this month. The price of beet sugar dropped 14 cents to 93 cents during the past month and cane sugar fell by 13 cents to $1.02 for a five-pound bag.

One year ago, beet sugar cost $1.43 or 50 cents more than the current price and cane sugar sold for $1.45 or 43 cents more.

Potato Harvest To Be Big One

Spuds will be in abundant supply this fall!

The nation's potato crop, now being harvested, is expected to be 10% higher than in 1975, according to marketing specialists with the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Acreage is up substantially in various parts of the country, with some of the largest additions being made on the West Coast.

According to USDA, wherever possible, water is being pumped to some of the desert land areas and a higher yield and a better quality potato are the result.

Americans like their potatoes mashed, hashed, sliced, French fried, diced, baked or boiled, but baked potatoes lead the popularity list — moving the long-time favorite mashed potato to second place.

USDA recommends trying some new ideas for serving potatoes since they will be in abundant supply:

—Clambaked potatoes: A hefty baked potato stuffed with deviled clams and topped with crisp bacon.

—Couquille Saint Spud: A nest of creamy mashed potatoes piped in a shell and served with a sea of fresh seafood.

—Steak Au Poivre Au Potato: The famous pepper steak served on a bed of scalloped potatoes.

—Lamb Stewed: A heady tureen of lamb and potatoes simmered in fine port and sherry and served with Irish soda bread.

—Cheese toasted Hash Browns: Meltingly delicious with Canadian bacon and cheddar served with orange juice.

—Fish and Slimchips: Sole poached in fine white wine with a splash of champagne, served with tiny new potatoes, steamed and sliced.

—Potatoes Benedict: A fluffy baked potato nesting a jumbo egg bathed in hollandaise, served with Canadian bacon and a wedge of orange.

Dieters will find comfort in these potato suggestions that embrace a good nutrition, good taste and a low calorie count.

—Potatoes Con Queso: Rich with everything but calories — potatoes baked on the half shell with cheese and fresh steamed vegetables.

—Gold Rush Potatoes: Steak and potatoes the way they served them on the Mother Lode, baked in a skillet with lots of fresh mushrooms.

—Hot Diggety Dogs: Frankfurters in a fluffy baked potato with a blanket of cheese.

What Is The Bid?

By B. JAY BECKER

You are South, both sides vulnerable, and the bidding has gone:

West	North	East	South
1 ♥	Pass	Pass	?

What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠K94 ♥QJ83 ♦K72 ♣KJ6
2. ♠K9743 ♥J ♦AJ84 ♣J75
3. ♠A6 ♥J9854 ♦A7 ♣Q842
4. ♠A82 ♥10 ♦KQJ96 ♣A953
5. ♠A10 ♥72 ♦K95 ♣AKQ962

1. One notrump. Special rules apply when the opponents stop at a low contract and the last bidder has a choice between passing or competing for the part score. The last bidder — in this case, South — is said to be in the balancing position.

Rather than throw in the sponge when the opponents have already indicated limited strength, the player in the balancing seat often keeps the bidding alive with fewer values than the bid he makes would normally indicate. Thus, in the present case, South should balance with one notrump even though he has much less than the 16 to 18 points customarily required for that call. One notrump is a more descriptive bid here than a double.

2. One spade. It would be unwise, in the long run, to give up without a fight. Lacking the values for a double, you simply bid one spade. Your heart singleton offers some degree of safety.

3. Pass. This hand is much more attractive defensively than offensively. North undoubtedly has some scattered strength, but his values are likely to be more useful if West is declarer. North can hardly have game-going values, considering his pass of one heart.

4. Double. This time you have a sound suit of your own to bid, but the double is preferable because it is more important to show general strength and suggest all-around trump support than to show the diamond suit. Two diamonds would sound too much like a protective bid and would frequently be based on a hand of less than opening bid proportions. A double in the balancing seat suggests at least some chance for game.

5. Three clubs. Although you have adequate strength for a takeout double, three clubs is a much better bid to make. The jump overcall indicates a very promising hand with little interest in any suit except clubs.

It urges partner to continue the bidding, but limits the chances for game to either clubs or notrump. Three clubs is not forcing, but indicates to partner that he needs little more than a heart stopper to produce a game in notrump.

Agnew To Sell Annapolis Home

Crofton, MD. (AP) — Spiro T. Agnew said Wednesday he plans to sell his home near Annapolis and move to Palm Springs, Calif., in the spring.

The former vice president said he has not put the home on the market yet, but is negotiating for the purchase of a home in Palm Springs, where his friend Frank Sinatra lives.

"Judy and I have always wanted to live out there after I retire, and we just decided to do it now," he said.

Agnew said he would maintain his office here and plans to live for several months each year in his Ocean City, Md., condominium.

"Actually, my office is anywhere there's a telephone," Agnew said, "so there's really not much point in moving it."

Major Denied Active Guard Duty Despite Court Order

By JOHN BARRETTE
Associated Press Writer

Nebraska's Army National Guard won't allow a major ousted from its ranks to return to duty or be paid, despite a Lancaster County District Court injunction issued this week

Col Burl Johnson said the "collective" Guard decision stems from an interpretation of Judge Herbert Ronin's preliminary injunction issued Tuesday in the case of Maj Robert Van Valkenburg of Lincoln

Van Valkenburg was ousted from the state Guard after an administrative hearing at which Adj Gen Francis Winner acted as hearing officer Winner cut the hearing short and on Sept 30 ordered Van Valkenburg honorably discharged

The order transferred Van Valkenburg to reserve status with the Army Reserve component based in St Louis

Judge Ronin's order said the Guard was "enjoined from taking any action to effectuate the retirement of the plaintiff from service in the Nebraska National Guard or denying him the benefits of his position as a major in the Nebraska National Guard

"The defendants are further ordered to cease and desist any attempt to enforce Military Department of Nebraska, Army National Guard Division order 64-5, dated 30 September, 1976"

"There's some question as to just what Judge Ronin's order means," Col Johnson said Thursday "His order doesn't say anything about rescinding the military department order

"We've already discharged the guy He's no longer a member of the guard as of Sept 30," Johnson said

However, Johnson said that although the Guard won't allow pay or training for Van Valkenburg, it is not "ignoring" the judge's injunction He said that could put it in contempt of court He said a hearing is set up to get clarification

Ronin's office said the hearing is set for next Tuesday

Terry Schaaf, assistant attorney general temporarily handling the matter for the Guard, indicated at that hearing there will be a motion filed to dissolve the preliminary injunction

He said there also may be a motion filed to have the entire matter dismissed from district court because the state and the Guard are named as defendants, which Schaaf contends may be improper.

Brian Ridenour, one of Van Valkenburg's attorneys, saw the interpretation of the judge's order as "strange"

"Mr Van Valkenburg wants to train this weekend," Ridenour said "If they won't allow him to train, it seems to me they are in contempt in relation to the court's order."

Van Valkenburg was ousted from the Guard after the partial hearing into charges that he made detrimental statements, including one about an investigation or inspection of the state's Army Guard by a Pentagon agency being imminent

The charges said that statement was untrue

No National Probe Slated For Guard

There is no national investigation of the Nebraska Army National Guard pending, according to a message received Thursday by the adjutant general's office

The telegram, from Gen LaVern Weber of the National Guard office in Washington, D C, said information about allegations of misconduct had been received

"Upon review," the message says, "we find that all actions are within the competence of state officials to investigate"

Maj Robert Van Valkenburg, who has appealed his forced retirement from the guard, had said during his hearing that an investigation was pending by Weber's office A spokesman for Weber denied any such investigation at that time

Another report had said an investigation was scheduled for Friday That probe, apparently, is the annual Inspector General investigating team report on guard unit efficiency

Guard staff will receive the team's reports Friday afternoon

Red Willow Ballot Will Include Garbage Issue

McCook (AP) — The Red Willow County Taxpayers League has lost the battle but won the war in its fight to put the issue of conversion to a mechanical garbage collection in McCook to a people's vote

After special meetings Wednesday and Thursday, the McCook City Council took the advice of its attorney, Keith Sinor, and declared the 72 petitions submitted by the league invalid because of the form in which they were presented

However the council said because 1,328 persons signed the petitions and 1,123 of those signatures were ruled valid, the council will act to place the issue on the November general election ballot or call a special election on the matter

The council previously decided to implement the one-man mechanical garbage collection system on a trial basis, with a final decision to be made by the voters in nine to 11 months

But the petition drive was launched to seek a vote before the system was tried

Skunk Gang Grubstake In Sidney

Sidney (UPI) — The drought has caused an unfortunate development in this western Nebraska city

Skunks by the hundreds have moved into town since the start of summer, and police officers have shot more than 200

Dry conditions caused the skunks rural watering holes to disapear, forcing them to come to town in search of a drink, according to Francis Hedglin, Sidney animal control officer

To make matters worse, the skunks also found an abundance of one of their favorite delicacies — grubs

Some lawns reportedly are showing signs the animals have been busy digging for grubs as well as in gardens for garbage buried as compost

Niobrara Park Site Unchosen

A Nebraska Game and Parks Commission official said Thursday there is still no agreement with the U S Army Corps of Engineers on a replacement for waterlogged Niobrara State Park

Dale Bree, head of the commission's parks division, said "we're active on this but it is going to take a little while yet"

The negotiations are over money to replace the park Due to dams and reservoirs on the Missouri River the water table at the park is rising, making it unusable

The town of Niobrara is also being moved to higher ground

Children Said Medicaid Victims

Washington (UPI) — Mismanagement in the Medicaid program allows the crippling, retardation and death of thousands of poor children entitled to help, a House subcommittee reported Thursday.

The report, approved by the subcommittee on a 10-1 vote with only Rep. James M. Collins, R-Tex., dissenting, was the second congressional attack on Medicaid practices in recent weeks.

Subcommittee chairman John Moss, D-Calif., in a letter transmitting the report to the parent House Commerce Committee, said:

"The subcommittee finds that mismanagement by HEW of this program has caused unnecessary crippling, retardation, or even death of thousands of children."

The report itself, titled "Shortchanging Children," said about 12.9 million persons under age 21 were eligible for medical examinations and treatment in 1975 under a law that was to have taken effect in 1969.

But 10.9 million of the eligible children were left unexamined and untreated, the report said.

Based on testimony at subcommittee hearings, the panel's staff estimated that about 1 million of the unscreened children would have been found to need treatment for a perceptual deficiency such as a significant hearing defect; 650,000 would need treatment for eye defects; 770,000 would have some kind of learning disability.

Missouri Agriculture Chief May Be In Line For Butz' Post

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Christopher S. Bond has been notified by a White House official that state Agriculture Department Director James B. Boillot might be under consideration as a successor to Earl Butz, who resigned as U.S. Agriculture Department Secretary.

Bond's press aide, Bruce Blomgren, said the governor was contacted by a White House official Wednesday and was asked about Boillot.

Bond was told that Boillot's name came as a recommendation from commissioners of agriculture department commissioners in other states.

The governor was told that the request was for a preliminary list of replacements for Butz, Blomgren said. The White House official was not named.

"I said he happens to be my director of agriculture. While I'm honored and flattered that you're considering him, we've got a lot of things going in Missouri and I'm not sure we want to lose him," Bond said, in quoting his end of the conversation with the Washington official.

Market Stages Moderate Rally

NEW YORK (AP) —The stock market shrugged off some adverse inflation news and staged a moderate rally Thursday, halting its sharpest and longest decline of the year.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, off 53.44 points in the last seven sessions, rebounded 5.40 to 965.09.

Advances outnumbered declines by about an 8-5 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Big Board volume totalled 19.83 million shares, compared with 20.87 million on Wednesday.

The day began on a sour note when the government reported a larger-than-expected 0.9 per cent rise in its wholesale price index last month—equivalent to a 10.8 per cent annual rate.

Wall Street had been expecting a rise in the index after its 0.1 per cent decline in August, but not one that large.

In the wake of that news, the Dow slumped to a minus-5 reading at about mid-day. But from that point it began a gradual but steady recovery.

Brokers said the upswing in stocks stemmed mainly from internal market forces. They observed that the selling pressure of recent days seemed to have exhausted itself for the moment.

At the same time, some tentative buying interest appeared among traders covering previous short sales or simply seeking out bargains.

The market also appeared to get a lift from a slight improvement in government figures on retail sales.

Sales volume of stores climbed 1.4 per cent last week, whe Commerce Department said, putting the week's year-to-year increase at 12 per cent, above the average 11 per cent gain recorded over the previous four weeks.

Most retailers' stocks showed gains for the day. Sears, Roebuck rose a point, and S. S. Kresge and F. W. Woolworth added fractions.

Auto stocks also moved ahead. The Commerce Department said auto dealers continued to pace the retail sales gains.

General Motors was up more than a point, with Chrysler and Ford moving ahead fractionally.

Bankamerica, the day's most active issue, edged up a fraction. On Thursday an offering of 7 million new shares of the bank holding company's stock came to market.

Wheat Plan Support Expected

Grand Island (UPI) — Willard Heyne, Nebraska Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service committee chairman, Wednesday said he believes the committee would support a federal program of acreage limitations for wheat.

Heyen, of Fremont, said a voluntary program to limit the number of acres planted in wheat would not work, unless a severe national or world drouth were to occur.

"Farmers belong to several different organizations and not one," he said, "so it would take the government to tell us what to do."

Heyne's comments came during a meeting Wednesday in Grand Island of state ASCS officials and representatives of Nebraska's eight ASCS districts. The purpose of the meeting was to decide how much individual counties will receive from the agricultural conservation program this year.

Nebraska officials announced last week that the state will receive nearly $5 million in federal conservation cost sharing funds in 1977.

Suit Planned Against Hastings Utility

Hastings (AP) — A class action suit against the Hastings Utilities will be undertaken by Mrs. Bernice Smith, Hastings.

Her attorney, Ron Fitzke, said Wednesday the suit will be filed in District Court in 10 days.

Mrs. Smith contends the utility incorrectly billed her as a commercial customer from 1966 until the error was discovered this spring.

The utility told her she could not receive a rebate after she found the error, she said.

If successful, the class action suit would affect only the customers who were on commercial rates and should have been charged the lower residential rates.

The utility's board members said they should not be held responsible for a situation they were not aware of. They also said they fear some customers would try to falsely obtain rebates.

Fitzke said it is impossible to determine the amount of money involved or the number of persons affected.

Maresh Won't Try Again For 1¢ Gas Tax Hike

Hastings (AP) — State Sen. Richard Maresh of Milligan said Wednesday night that he will not reintroduce a bill in the 1977 Nebraska Legislature calling for an additional 1¢ state tax on each gallon of gasoline.

Maresh has unsuccessfully tried twice before for such a tax in an effort to raise funds for the State Roads Dept. He said he will leave the task of introducing such a bill to someone else.

In the past, he said, he has been opposed even by the State Roads Dept. in trying to put through the tax.

Maresh commented at a regional roads department informational meeting.

Maresh said he thinks for the most part the roads department is using its funds wisely. But, he said, it seems the department is surveying all the time.

MUD Board Approves 38 Salary Hikes

Omaha (AP) — The Metropolitan Utilities District board has approved salary increases for 38 supervisory, professional and administrative employes.

The increases total $51,175 and average 7.8%. Increases range from 4.5% to 11.4%.

Thirty-four lower and middle management employes received pay hikes totaling $43,450, and averaging 8%.

Four upper management employes got average increases of 6.8%, totaling $7,725.

The four upper management employes and their salaries are Willis L. Strong, assistant general counsel, from $32,150 to $34,100, 6%; Benjamin C. Altman, general superintendent of gas operations, from $29,350 to $31,100, 6%; Gerald A. Radek, general superintendent of engineering and construction, from $27,225 to $29,275, 7.5%; and Angelo L. Amato, from $24,625 to $26,600, 8%.

Utility Workers In Fremont May Get Only 5.5% Hike

Fremont (AP) — About 80 utility workers in Fremont will apparently have to settle for a 5.5% wage hike, a Nebraska Court of Industrial Relations opinion suggests.

Judge J. Patrick Green Wednesday issued an opinion in the wage dispute that involves Local 1536 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the city council and the board of public works.

The union was negotiating for a 10 to 20% wage increase with the public works board but the city council a year ago refused to allow it and claimed jurisdiction in the labor talks.

Green said Wednesday that the city council, which has approved wage hikes of 5.5% for all municipal workers, has bargaining rights for all city employes, including the utility workers.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Friday, October 8, 1976

Report from a reader: "I read your column every day. Being Pisces, my sign is down deep, I am always fast. Why should this be? Can we do something about it? I don't think it's fair!" — William James Stevens, Walnut Creek, Calif. Reponse: Pisces is not fast as far as I am concerned. As for being the 12th or last zodiacal sign, perhaps it is a matter of saving the best for last. Pisces will not be last in this column, not on this full moon night. Here is Pisces, right on top of the column. Pisces is Lawrence Durrell, Anais Nin, Jackie Gleason, Elizabeth Taylor, Michael Caine and William James Stevens.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Full moon in your sign emphasizes more-than-usual attention, final decision, ability to successfully complete major assignment, project. What occurs affects where you live, family situation, the way you dress and credit for past efforts.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Much that occurs is glamorous, shrouded in mystery, closed door, backstage. Discretion is necessary. Accent on hospitals, institutions, organizations, the media. You may be asked to be a "special representative."

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Full moon position emphasizes fulfillment of desires, realization of profit from business endeavor, more recognition from peers. Capricorn, Cancer individuals figure in picture. If single, you could get "heavily" involved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Study Gemini message for valid hint. Your standing, prestige, ability to handle responsibility — these are emphasized. You are tested, perhaps challenged. Indications are that you not only survive, you prevail, win and dominate.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You get chance to make views known far and wide — more persons are concerned, interested and attentive. Distance, potential, philosophical implications figure prominently. Express yourself. Put forth fresh concepts, original ideas.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Emphasis on what is hidden, obscured from view — and finances in connection with partner or mate. Business arrangements depend on leases, tax structure, return on investment, interest. Aquarius, Cancer persons may be in picture. Dig beneath surface. Concern with the occult may surface.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent on contracts, public relations, legal procedures, long-term relationship, communication with partner or spouse. Highlight versatility, intellectual curiosity. Don't insist or cajole — ride with tide. You'll understand and benefit.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Go slow; capture subtle nuances, details. Key now is to be thorough. Take nothing for granted. Understand that no one is going to give up something of value for nothing. There is no free lunch and the "Tooth Fairy" seems to have vanished.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Creativity, change, dealings with active, shrewd people — this is emphasized. Member of opposite sex could be in picture. Gemini and another Sagittarian could be part of your personal scenario. Youthful appeal, and vigor figure prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Abode, secure position, close of business transaction, dealings with parent or authority figure — these are spotlighted. Taurus, Libra and Scorpio figure prominently. Be specific; insist on factual information, not tall tales.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Emphasis on short trips, relatives, being selective where ideas are concerned, giving full play to intellectual curiosity. Gemini and Taurus figure prominently. Full moon position stresses greater flexibility and popularity.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Values, art appreciation, luxury items, costs, payments and collections are featured. Lunar position emphasizes personal needs, desires, what you can afford and what you possess. You find that you're being considered for promotion. In personal life, a relationship intensifies. Are you ready?

IF OCTOBER 8th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are creative, stubborn, passionate, a good executive, attractive, forceful, musical, an organizer and you're going to scale the heights in December. Capricorn, Cancer persons play important roles in your life. This has been a year during which you made changes, shook off lethargy. If single, this is a marriage year. If married, there could be an addition to family.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

English Or Pig Latin—Nebraska To Stop Colorado, 28-21

Sports Signals

By Bob Owens
Star Sports Editor

Ebraskana 28, Oloradoca 21

Some of my recent picks of college football games have been so bad I decided to make my Nebraska-Colorado selection in Pig Latin. Make it Ebraskana 28, Oloradoca 21.

The Huskers remain my choice to win the Big Eight Conference championship as the title race heats up Saturday. I like Kansas over Oklahoma State and Missouri over Kansas State in the other league games.

Texas is my pick in the annual bash with Oklahoma in the Cotton Bowl in Dallas while Iowa State will get back on the winning track over Utah.

The Huskers are seven-point favorities in the Jimmy "The Greek" list and they've been picked by the wire service experts: 28-20 by Fred Rothenberg of Associated Press, also 28-20 by the AP's Herschel Nissenson, and 22-16 by Fred McMane of UPI.

Mort Olshan's Pigskin Prophecy says it's NU by 20-13. "After Miami scare, Nebraska should be ready to maintain series hex," Olshan writes. "No losses at Boulder since 1960. Super-physical Black Shirt defense figures to shut off somewhat basic Buff attack and keep a lot of pressure on young CU quarterbacking. Ferragamo has arm to compensate for pedestrian NU running game."

Wonder what he means by a "pedestrian" running game?

Conference Races Heat Up

The nation's other major conferences begin in earnest Saturday the task of determining championships.

Ohio State and Michigan appear to have the inside track, as usual, in the Big Ten. It looks like a battle between UCLA and Southern California in the Pacific-8. Georgia and Florida look capable of replacing Alabama atop the Southeastern Conference heap while Maryland looks best in the Atlantic Coast.

Texas probably should be favored in the Southwest, but several teams look like threats — Texas Tech, Texas A & M, Arkansas and maybe even Houston.

A week ago, Wyoming coach Fred Akers said Arizona State was the best 0-2 team in the nation. Now, as the Sun Devils prepare to play Cincinnati, Coach Frank Kush's team just has to be the best 0-3 team in the country. Who would have thought it?

Kush said ASU's offensive effort in the 13-10 loss to Wyoming "was an insult to the game of football." Kush has promised some major changes, charging some Sun Devils aren't giving a full effort.

Ivy Pick: Harvard

Harvard is a slight favorite in the Ivy League, getting an argument from Dartmouth and Brown. Yale figures to be close.

Here are my winners for Saturday:

Big Ten — Illinois over Minnesota, Northwestern over Indiana, Ohio State over Iowa, Michigan over Michigan State, Wisconsin over Purdue.

Pacific-8 — California over Oregon, UCLA over Stanford, Southern Cal over Washington State, Washington over Oregon State.

Southwest — Baylor over SMU, Houston over West Texas, Rice over TCU, Texas Tech over Texas A & M.

Southeastern — Alabama over Southern Mississippi, Memphis State over Auburn, Georgia over Mississippi, Kentucky over Mississippi State, LSU over Vanderbilt, Tennessee over Georgia Tech.

Western Athletic — Arizona State over Cincinnati, Arizona over Texas-El Paso, Brigham Young over Wyoming, Colorado State over Utah State.

Ivy — Brown over Penn, Dartmouth over Yale, Harvard over Cornell, Princeton over Colgate

Independents — Boston College over Florida State, Navy over Air Force, Penn State over Army, Pittsburgh over Louisville, Rutgers over Connecticut, Syracuse over Tulane, West Virginia over Temple.

Others — Maryland over North Carolina State, Miami-Florida over Duke, South Carolina over Virginia, VPI over VMI, Wake Forest over Clemson, Richmond over Villanova, Delaware over William & Mary, New Mexico State over Idaho, New Mexico over San Jose State, North Texas over Cal Poly-Pomona, Ball State over Illinois State, Bowling Green over Toledo, Fresno State over Wichita, Indiana State over Northern Illinois, Long Beach State over Drake, Ohio U. over Central Michigan, Western Michigan over Kent State.

Slippery Rock, which evened its record at 2-2 by beating Edinboro State 24-19 last week, will win over Shippensburg.

Kansas City Royals' Hal McRae and George Brett, right, enjoy practice as they work out at third base at Royals Stadium. The Royals will meet the New York Yankees Saturday to begin the American League playoffs.

Herzog May Change Batting Order

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Kansas City Royals Manager Whitey Herzog, waiting one last day before announcing his batting order, said Thursday Buck Martinez would catch for the Royals in Saturday's opening game of the American League playoffs with the New York Yankees.

Herzog said he may make some adjustments in the batting order but he would use the same basic lineup he used during the regular season.

That would have John Mayberry at first base, Frank White at second, George Brett at third, Fred Patek at shortstop, Amos Otis in centerfield, Al Cowens in rightfield and Tom Poquette in leftfield against righthanded pitchers and Jim Wohlford in left against lefthanders. Hal McRae, runnerup to Brett in the AL batting race, would be the designated hitter.

The opening day catcher had been in doubt with righthander Jim "Catfish" Hunter scheduled to start for the Yankees and lefty Larry Gura for Kansas City.

Martinez was used mainly against lefthanded pitchers and Bob Stinson against righthanders. John Wathan had been Gura's requested catcher when he pitched the Royals to a four-hit 4-0 win over Oakland to clinch a tie for the American League West title last week.

"I'm going to catch Buck in the first game," Herzog said. "He handles the pitchers well and he has been throwing real good lately. John and Bob have done a good job too but we are in a situation where we have to go with the guys we have relied on all season."

Six members of the New York Yankees' 10-man pitching staff are playoff veterans which righthander Jim "Catfish" Hunter says gives the American League East champions a big edge over Kansas City.

The only Royals pitcher who has been in the playoffs is lefthander Tom Hall, a seldom-used lefthanded reliever who has a 6.43 earend run average in playoff competition with the 1969 and 1970 Minnesota Twins and 1972 and 1973 Cincinnati Reds.

"When you get to this stage, everyone is psyched up," Hunter said Thursday.

"But it always helps to have been there. It is a big plus for us to have the experience."

Hunter, who will start the opening game for the Yankees, pitched in four playoffs and three World Series with the Oakland A's, compiling a 7-2 post-season record.

Phillies, Reds Always Play Close

CINCINNATI (UPI) — A dozen regular season games indicate the Cincinnati Reds-Philadelphia Phils' matchup in the National League playoffs should be a baseball fan's delight — exciting, close games played by hard-nosed competitors.

Eight of the 12 Reds-Phils meetings this year were decided by one run — including some slugfests that wound up 10-9, 8-7, 7-6 and could have gone either way.

The Phils held a 7-5 edge in victories but total runs were just about even — the Phils scoring 62 times, the Reds 60.

The defending world champion Reds are in the playoffs for the fifth time in the past seven years. This is Philadelphia's first post-season play since way back in 1950.

"Speed" has become the overworked word in the pre-playoff publicity barrage, but with good reason — it is the Reds' main battle plan.

And, a glance at base stealing statistics in the 12 Reds-Phils duels this year shows why.

Cincinnati was successful in 14 of 18 steals against Philadelphia.

The Phils attempted only four steals and were thrown out twice.

And, Cincy's Joe Morgan, who had more thefts this season than Philadelphia's top two speedsters combined (60 to the total of 59 for Larry Bowa and Garry Maddox) has been doing his "base stealing" homework this week.

By positions, the Reds-Phils confrontation produces some interesting matchups:

Catching — Cincy's Johnny Bench has been a disappointing hitter, batting just .234, his poorest season in the majors. But he still is to be feared defensively and won't permit the Phils to run the way the Reds do. Phils' regular catcher Bob Boone hit .306 against Cincinnati, but may find it hard to throw out the Cincy speedsters. Veteran Tim McCarver, whose arm is not as good as Boone's, will catch when Steve Carlton pitches and the Reds hope to run him ragged.

Pitching — Philly appears to have the edge in starters with Carlton (20-7) and Jim Lonborg (18-10) and although Ozark boasts about his bullpen, the Reds seem to have better relievers. Whenever Cincy manager Sparky Anderson looks to his bullpen, which he does often, he sees the National League's top reliever in Rawly Eastwick. Anderson may have to go to Eastwick early because his first two starters will be a rookie (Pat Zachry) and a man coming off arm troubles (Don Gullett).

Infield — Close defensively. Reds have Gold Glove double-play combo in Morgan and Davey Concepcion. While Phils' Davey Cash and Bowa also are good defensively, the duo give away a lot of batting points to Morgan-Concepcion. At third, Philly's Mike Schmidt is probably a better fielder than Pete Rose, although the Reds' "Mr. Hustle" gets gritty in the playoffs. Schmidt is the power man with 38 homers this year, but leadoff man Rose is hard to keep off the bases. And, Rose has hit .442 against Philly pitching this year. At first base, both Cincy's Tony Perez and Dick Allen are power hitters and are about equal defensively.

Outfield — Reds' Cesar Geronimo, Ken Griffey and George Foster are much better defensively than the Phils. While Philly center fielder Maddox is a better hitter than his counterpart Geronimo, Griffey and Foster give the Reds a better hitting outfield despite Philadelphia's power and clutch hitting Greg Luzinski.

Brett To Ask Kuhn: Call Bat Title A Tie

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Still unhappy about the bizarre circumstances that helped him win the American League batting championship, George Brett said Thursday he would call upon Commissioner Bowie Kuhn to declare a tie with teammate Hal McRae.

Brett, the Kansas City Royals' third baseman, finished the season at .333, one point better than McRae after a disputed play by Minnesota left fielder Steve Brye in Sunday's last regular season game.

"They said the commissioner and the American League were going to investigate it," Brett told The Associated Press. "But nobody from the league office has said a word to me."

Lee MacPhail, president of the AL, said Thursday he was satisfied after an intensive investigation that the batting race was won by Brett on merit. "It is unjust to imply otherwise," MacPhail said after the AL office had questioned various people regarding the Brett-McRae situation.

McRae ws leading by a fraction of a per centage point when Brett came to bat in the bottom of the ninth and lofted a fly ball into medium left field that Brye misplayed into an inside-the-park home run.

McRae, next up, grounded out and had to be restrained from charging into the Minnesota dugout.

"I love Mac," said the 23-year-old Brett. "He's been a real friend to me and he's one of the last people in the world I want to hurt. In view of what happened, I want the commissioner to change the standings and make it a tie."

"I didn't see Brye miss the play because I was running, but everybody tells me any batboy could have caught it."

McRae indicated immediately after the game he felt Brye and Twins Manager Gene Mauch might have conspired to assist Brett. Mauch and Brye vehemently denied the charges.

"I'm not planning to write the commissioner," Brett said. "I'm hoping he'll see this and will have to respond."

'We Don't Play Well Against NU'

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Bill Mallory is in only his third year as head coach at the University of Colorado but that has been long enough for him to realize how much trouble Nebraska's football team provides for the Buffaloes.

In Mallory's first year, Nebraska beat Colorado 31-15 at Boulder. Last year, the Buffs went into Lincoln with a 21-20 loss to Oklahoma as the only blemish on their record and got blitzed 63-21.

The problems go back further than that. The Buffs have not beaten Nebraska in nine years and even more troublesome, Colorado has not beaten the Cornhuskers at home since 1960.

The Buffs get a chance to try and change all that this weekend when they open the Big Eight Conference season at home Saturday against the Cornhuskers. In other Big Eight opening games, eighth-ranked Kansas travels to Oklahoma State and ninth-ranked Missouri travels to Kansas State. In non-league action, third-ranked Oklahoma meets Texas in Dallas and Iowa State hosts Utah.

"I've only been here two years and I know I haven't done much," said Mallory, whose team is 3-1. "It is hard to put a finger on it but we just don't play well against them. I don't know what the reason is."

Last week, Colorado did not play well against Drake but finally rallied for a 45-24 win "and if we do't play better than that this week we are going to be embarrassed again like last year."

Nebraska has had trouble getting its scoring-machine going. The Cornhuskers, 3-0-1, did roll up impressive margins against Indiana and Texas Christian, but most teams can do that. They were tied 6-6 by LSU and had to rally from behind to beat Miami (Fla.) 17-9 last week.

The Huskers do have quarterback Vince Ferragamo who leads the league in passing and total offense and defensive back Dave Butterfield, who leads in interceptions and punt returns. They also lead the conference as a team in passing offense, total defense, rushing defense and scoring defense.

Kansas coach Bud Moore is sure his team won't be overconfident with its unbeaten record as it readies for Oklahoma State, a team which has lost only once in the last seven meetings to the Jayhawks.

"They embarrassed us at home last year," Moore said, remembering last year's 35-19 loss to OSU, "and they have quite a few of the same people back (18 starters) so I think we know what we have to do."

Oklahoma State does feature the finest set of running backs in the conference with Terry Miller and Robert Turner, both averaging 85.7 yards a game. Kansas has its own potent running attack, led by halfback Laverene Smith who is averaging 108.5 yards a game and is just 59 yards short of John Riggins' school career record, and quarterback Nolan Cromwell, who is running for 92 yards a game.

Kansas State is the league's worst team in every offensive cateogry and with a 1-3 record the only team that is not over .500. Wildcat coach Ellis Rainsberger is hoping to shake things up and he is starting by moving Roy Jones, a junior college transfer, into the offensive lineup at quarterback.

Missouri, with Pete Woods still quarterbacking in place of the injured Steve Pisarkiewicz, has scored two straight victories over previously unbeaten and nationally-ranked teams and even if it has a letdown should enjoy its league opener.

Iowa State returns to the non-league patsies — adding Utah to Drake, Air Force and Kent State — after opening its league season last week with a 24-10 loss to Oklahoma while the Sooners head for Texas for their annual rivalry in hopes of their sixth striaght win over the Longhorns.

Championship Hopes Gone, But Rivalry Good

Lincoln East and Lincoln Northeast, two perennial Class A-rated football teams, show only three wins in 10 games between them this season.

But neither has plunged into psychological despair as they prepare for Friday night's intra-city game at Seacrest Field.

STEVE DAMKROGER . . . Lincoln Northeast linebacker.

Despite losing three games by a combined total of four points, Northeast coach Bob Els says "our kids have reacted well. They know their championship hopes are gone.

"But they're still practicing hard and keeping a good outlook," he adds. "They know they've been in every game since our opener and they know we're capable of beating anyone we play."

East coach Lee Zentic, whose Spartans have lost to three unbeaten teams, says "our kids have never been down either. We're just doing things young players do — alignment problems, not carrying out assignments, fundamental mistakes on exchanges and blocking schemes.

"A lot of little things will add up in a hurry," he says. "But our kids are growing up. You can see they're changed people. They have more confidence and more maturity."

Northeast has a 1-4 record. East is only 2-3, but the Spartans have not given up any season-long goals.

"We're not out of anything," Zentic emphasizes. "We only have one loss in each conference and the way people are beating each other around, we're not out of the playoff picture either.

"I don't think the records indicate at all the type of football teams we both are," Zentic says. "Our three losses are to unbeaten teams and Northeast is certainly much better than its record.

"It may not be the showdown it has been," allows Zentic, "but it's still going to be a heckuva game. That's the way every city game will be because anybody can beat anybody."

Northeast's Els agrees. "I think it'll be a whale of a game," he says. "There's a lot of pride at stake. I know East feels they still have a shot at things and we'd like to have the satisfaction of knocking them out of it."

Junior Todd Hinkle will start at quarterback for the Spartans with regular Chip Carmichael sidelined with a broken wrist.

Zentic confirmed halfback Craig Bohl is lost for the season with his shoulder injury. "Craig playing less than one game for us this season is comparable to Stan Hegener playing only one game for us in 1969 because of a knee injury," Zentic says.

Tackle Jim Dietz is still out of Northeast's lineup with a hip separation. Halfback Joe Prai also is a doubtful performer against East. He tore a fingernail and the tip of his right index finger off in last week's 15-4 loss to Papillion.

Els thinks Northeast had improved every game until the Rockets lost to Papillion. "We've got to start making our own breaks and take advantage of the opportunities we do get," he says.

East will be bolstered with the return of defensive end Mike Festenau, who has been sidelined with a severe thigh bruise. Guard Joel Heck also has recovered from a neck injury, according to Zentic.

Two other games are scheduled in Lincoln this weekend. Friday night, Lincoln Pius X (4-0) hosts Omaha Holy Name (3-2 and No. 10 in the Class C-2 ratings).

Saturday night, Lincoln Southeast (3-1-1) entertains Grand Island (4-0-1) in a Trans-Nebraska Conference showdown at Seacrest Field.

Lincoln High (3-1-1) is the only Capital City team facing a road assignment this weekend. The Links play at Millard (1-4) Friday night.

NU To Take Four I-Backs

Four I-backs will travel with Nebraska for the Cornhuskers' opening Big Eight Conference football game Saturday afternoon against Colorado in Boulder.

Coach Tom Osborne made the decision to add an extra runner because of the injury status of Monte Anthony, Richard Berns and Dave Gillespie. The fourth one is Byron Stewart. Gillespie was replaced on the travel roster by sophomore back Isaiah Hipp.

The 55-man squad has just two wingbacks, but the split ends can be alternated at that position in event Curtis Craig and Earl Everett are injured during the game.

Freshman middle guard Kerry Weinmaster is among the travelers.

The travel squad:

Morning Briefing

Braves Rehire Aaron

Hank Aaron
Braves Again

Home run king Hank Aaron, who left Atlanta with some bitterness after his record-breaking career homer two years ago, returned as a vice president of the Atlanta Braves.

Braves owner Ted Turner said Aaron will be in charge of player development and supervise the Braves farm system. Aaron signed a one-year contract.

Aaron said he thought that Reggie Jackson could break his home run record "if he wants to." Aaron also talked about hitting against Detroit pitcher Mark Fidrych. When asked what he did when Fidrych went through his ritual of talking to the baseball, Aaron said, "Well, I'd just talk to my bat."

Other Baseball

The Atlanta Braves announced they have hired former major leaguer Johnny Sain as their pitching coach, succeeding Herm Starrette, who will remain with the club in an advisory capacity.

Lee MacPhail, president of the American League, announced that Bill Haller will be the officiating crew chief for the AL playoffs. He will be joined by Larry Barnett, Art Frantz, George Maloney, Larry McCoy and Joe Brinkman, who will be working his first playoffs.

Phil Pepe of the New York Daily News and Sid Bordman of the Kansas City Star, both veteran baseball writers, were named official scorers for the AL playoffs.

Judge Roy Hofheinz, who recently sold his dream Astrodome and the Houston Astros, has lost his option to repurchase the financially troubled club and the Astrodome.

Dave Garcia, a onetime minor league manager, was added to the California Angels' staff for 1977, replacing Vern Hoscheit as third base coach. Hoscheit retired in order to devote more time to his business interests in Nebraska.

Women are invading one of baseball's biggest ceremonial rites — the tossing out of the first pitch. The Cincinnati Reds announced they have invited Mrs. Eppa Rixey, widow of the Reds' all-time winningest pitcher, to throw out the first ball for game No. 3 in Cincinnati. If game four is needed, Cincinnati mayor Mrs. Bobbie Sterne will do the honors, but if game five is needed, the Reds' public address announcer Paul Sommerkamp, who is completing 25 years of service without missing a game, will throw out the first pitch.

The Los Angeles Dodgers said that Preston Gomez, former manager of the San Diego Padres and Houston Astros, has rejoined the staff and is expected to take over third base coaching duties.

Football

The Washington Redskins placed backup wide receiver and kick returner Bryan Fryer, the first Canadian to make an NFL roster directly from college, on the injured reserve list and activated former Duke standout Doug Winslow for Sunday's game with the Kansas City Chiefs.

Eight of the 13 NFL games scheduled Sunday were sold out 72 hours before kickoff time and will be available for local television coverage.

The Pittsburgh Steelers said offensive guard Gerry Mullins will start Sunday the Browns in Cleveland.

A spokesman for the New York Jets denied a report that Rick Forzano, who resigned as head coach of the Detroit Lions, would be hired as an aide to Lou Holtz.

New Orleans Saints' quarterback Archie Manning will see another specialist in hopes of finding relief from the pain in his throwing arm.

There was an ad in Thursday's Oklahoma City newspapers listed the telephone numbers of a bail bond service which has offices in Dallas, Oklahoma City and several other cities. Oklahoma meets Texas Saturday in Dallas.

Quarterback Mike Livingston will start for the Kansas City Chiefs in Sunday's game against Washington.

Other Sports

All-America Bob Byman has quit the Wake Forest golf team rather than sign a roster pleding support to the team and new coach Ron Roberts.

Lee Trevino used sign language and a hot putter to run off five birdies over the final nine holes and move into a share of the lead with Allen Miller after the first round of the $300,000 Pacific Masters Golf Tournament at Inzai, Japan.

Hale Irwin, trying for a third straight Piccadilly World Match Play golf title, tamed 19-year-old Severiano Ballesteros of Spain 2 and 1 Thursday over 36 holes of high winds and muddy fairways.

The Ring Magazine said it would give Muhammad Ali a 60-day grace period before officially declaring him the retired world heavyweight boxing champion.

The return of horse racing to Rhode Island depends upon the owners of Lincoln Downs and Narrgansett Park accepting strict management changes and a merger at one track, Gov. Philip W. Noel said.

A spokesman for the U.S. National Soccer team said the U.S. Soccer federation refused players' play demands because of doubts the club could win its world cup matches.

Sooners Lose Blevins

From News Wires

Oklahoma quarterback Dean Blevins is a doubtful participant for Saturday's OU-Texas football classic, coach Barry Switzer announced Thursday.

Blevins, a junior from Norman, was admitted to the Goddard Health Center for treatment of orchitis, which team physician Dr. Don F. Robinson described as a swollen testicle.

"We won't know until Friday at noon if Dean will be able to play," Switzer said. "Right now it's 99 per cent that he won't." Switzer said sophomore Thomas Lott would move into the starting position if Blevins is unable to play.

But the game itself may not be more exciting than some of the pre-game activities. Last year 133 arrests were made at the pregame bash in downtown Dallas, and a similar figure is expected this year.

But ticket scalpers won't have any trouble with the law. Regular tickets are going for as much as $150 with student tickets selling for $50. District attorney Henry Wade said, "In Texas, anything is legal if you don't have a law prohibiting it."

In Ames, Iowa State wrapped up preparations for Utah with a one-hour drill.

"It's good for us to have a nonconference game after playing Oklahoma," said coach Earle Bruce. "But we know we have to be prepared to play Saturday."

Bruce will start sophomore tailback Jeff Curry and share time with regular starter Cal Cummins.

Missouri quarterback Steve Pisarkiewicz won't get the chance to try out his injured right shoulder against Kansas State this weekend.

"Steve won't make the trip to Manhattan," said coach Al Onofrio. "The shoulder has been termed okay and he's going to start throwing, but you have to work him into it gradually.

Kansas State coach Ellis Rainsberger is worried about the Wildcats' mental attitude as they get ready for the Big Eight Opener with the MU Tigers.

"I'm real concerned about the ability of our team to get back up after two close losses," he said. "Our practices haven't been good this week. We've got to be excited if we're going to contain a team like Missouri.

In Stillwater, Oklahoma State stressed offensive execution in its last workout before their encounter with Kansas.

"We need to execute better than we've ever executed in our lives, because Kansas has an improved defense," coach Jim Stanley said. "We need to score points — I mean get the ball in the endzone."

Kansas cornerback Skip Sharp and defensive tackle Franklin King will be back at their starting positions Saturday, Coach Bud Moore said. Sharp had been out with a bruised shoulder and King with a leg bruise.

Moore said starting linebacker Terry Beeson was nursing a bruised shoulder but should be ready Saturday.

Yankees, Reds Slight Favorites

RENO, Nev. (AP) — The New York Yankees and the Cincinnati Reds have been made slight favorites in Saturday's opening baseball playoff games.

Betting odds posted by Harrah's Race and Sports Book Thursday had the Yankees at 10-13 and Kansas City 11-10 in the American League.

In the National League, Cincinnati was an even money bet while Philadelphia was a 5-6 selection.

Westside's Johnson Leads Rushers

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Omaha Westside's Craig Johnson, the state's leading Class A rusher and scorer, has a problem countless others would like to have — he can't put on weight.

"I don't know why," the 6-2, 165-pound Johnson says. "I drink milkshakes and those instant breakfasts all the time. I try every kind of high calorie food I can think of. My mom's always fixing different things and I eat a lot of ice cream."

Being thin, however, hasn't hurt him. He's averaging 161 yards rushing — 52 more a game than his closest challenger and has scored 58 points on nine touchdowns and four conversions.

"Craig is very trim, but he's also very muscular," Westside coach Don Johnson says. "He lifts weights all the time. He's in great physical condition. I'm sure he'll weigh 190 by the time he's a college freshman."

The senior back entertains no thoughts where that might be. "He's too busy concentrating on winning," his coach says. "Wherever he decides to go, I'm sure they'll make room for him. He's by far the best back I've ever coached.

"Craig has it all," he adds. "He has the good speed (:04.6), strength, balance, agility, durability, attitude, dedication, everything you can think of."

Johnson will face his major test of the season Friday night when fourth-rated Westside hosts No. 1 Creighton Prep, which has yielded only eight points in five games.

"We'll just try to attack where we think can attack best," coach Johnson says. "We hope we can dictate to them where they play their monster back."

Craig Johnson
Top Scorer-Rusher

Last week, Omaha Roncalli tried to check Johnson's astronomical rushing totals. by running a 4-3 defense and keying its middle linebacker on Craig every play. He still almost matched his per game average on 29 carries.

"The yardage doesn't mean that much to me," Craig says. "I just want to do what it takes to win. The points mean more than the yards."

The amazing thing about Johnson's rushing totals is they have been accumulated with few long runs. "It's been almost all six to eight yards a clip," his coach points out. "He had one 38-yarder, but that was on a fake punt against North."

Johnson says he knew last year that Craig would develop into a major college prospect. "He played super in our two state playoff games," he notes. "We knew he had everything it takes to be a great back."

Prep presents the supreme test. "I think the thing that makes Prep's defense so great is their linebacker pursuit," Craig observes.

"They were definitely the hardest hitting team we played last year," he recalls. "I don't know how many yards I got, but it couldn't have been over 50. They shut down Bob Billinger, too.

"We know they'll be tough Friday night," Craig says. "But they're like any other team. If we get our blocking assignments down and carried out, we're going to get the yards."

USD, UNO Sign Pact

Vermillion, S.D. — The University of South Dakota and the University of Nebraska-Omaha have signed a contract for a home and home football series in 1977.

The Coyotes will play UNO at Omaha in the season's opener, Sept. 3, and UNO will come to Vermillion Nov. 12.

Cardinals Hire Denver's Rapp

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Vern Rapp, 48, a veteran of 15 seasons as a minor league manager, was hired Thursday by the St. Louis Cardinals to succeed Red Schoendienst as the field boss of the National League team.

Rapp, a product of St. Louis, thus returns to the club which signed him as a catcher in 1948. He spent most of his playing career in the minors.

Rapp, manager of the Denver Bears of the American Association in 1976, directed minor league teams to a 981-878 record over 15 seasons.

Cards' President August A. Busch Jr., who announced the hiring, said Rapp "has excellent credentials."

"He has been a proven and successful manager at the Triple-A level for eight years," Busch said. "Vern Rapp's long and successful career in developing young ballplayers, leaves no doubt in my mind as to his abilities."

The hiring of Rapp followed by only two days the firing of Schoendienst, 53, who had managed the Cards for 12 seasons.

Rapp, reached at his home in suburban Denver, described himself as "very, very happy."

Rapp said he signed a one-year contract with St. Louis, noting that the Cardinals have a policy of only giving out one-year pacts.

THE BETTER BARGAIN: AMERICA'S TOP SELLING IMPORT STILL AT '76 PRICES.

If you hurry, your Toyota dealer can show you why '76 Toyotas have been a bargain all year long. And when you look around and see what others are giving you at '77 prices a Toyota is even a better bargain now. But it's more than Toyota '76 prices that make them a better bargain.

The better bargain is quality. What good is a good price on a car whose durability is questionable? Toyotas are built tough with unitized welded construction to help eliminate squeaks and rattles. And then each Toyota car is completely submerged in primer paint to protect against corrosion and rust. In fact 9 out of 10 Toyota cars sold in this country are still on the road.

The better bargain is economy. Just as important as Toyota's low purchase price is its total economy. Other cars may offer so called deals with huge savings. But those same cars may eventually eat up dollars with high operating costs or low resale value. The economy of operation of a Toyota can help keep your new car bargain a bargain. Check resale values at your Toyota dealer. You'll like what you see.

The better bargain is the top seller. Is a bargain getting something off on a car nobody wants? Not likely. This year Toyota offered new car buyers a challenge. We said, "If you can find a better built small car than Toyota buy it." This year, more people are buying '76 Toyotas than any other import car. You see, a real bargain is always a bargain.

It's Such Fun In Ok City, Who Needs The Drive To Dallas?

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — This fellow here in town tried to purchase tickets to the game Saturday at Dallas. He wore out his old combat boots standing in lines. At first he placed ads, spending an extra 30 or 40 cents probably to include the notation he would not do dirty business with scalpers. Later on, becoming desperate, he offered 50 bucks apiece and said he'd throw in the wife. Finally, as a last resort, he said he'd pay the 50 and keep her. Still no takers. He is staying home.

From here on, he will be referred to as Okie O'Dell. That is not his actual name, you understand, but one I have given him to protect the guilty.

Mr. O'Dell came up with what is really a rather simple idea and it is surprising that more folks have not thought of it first. He has laid all the groundwork for a big weekend in Big D. Only he must, because of being unsuccessful in his bid to buy tickets at any price, spend his time in Big O.

His weekend will start early Friday afternoon.

"I am going to find," he says, while hardly able to wait, "the crummiest beer joint in Oklahoma City." He plans to spend a good portion of the afternoon and evening hours there, partaking.

By about 11 p.m. he feels he will be ready. He will drive to downtown Oklahoma City and begin a noisy parade up and down Main Street. He will honk with his right hand. He will make upside down Hook 'em Horns signs with his left. He will creep along the street, as if in the midst of bumper-to-bumper traffic.

Sometime in late morning on Saturday, either at his own house or in Oklahoma City's own jail, he will awaken. All but his head. It will feel like a baloon stuffed with mud.

Mr. O'Dell lives in the northwest part of town, not far off May Avenue. He has talked a friend into driving another car about six blocks ahead, going north on May. At some busy intersection, such as 50th Street, the friend will stop his car, lift the hood and fake engine trouble. Traffic will become awful, awfuller, awfullest.

Stuck back there in anger will be Okie O'Dell, imagining himself en route to the Cotton Bowl. He will honk with his neighbors. He will make ugly remarks having to do with the State of Texas.

After being trapped in traffic about an hour, he plans to give up.

"I will pull off on a side street and pay some guy two bucks to park in his driveway."

Mr. O'Dell then will be about nine blocks from his house. He will start walking there, terrible as he feels.

The excitement will be great as he comes into view of his own house. Out front will be the neighborhood kids he has hired in advance. They will be wandering aimlessly, wearing frantic expressions and carrying crude cardboard signs with such messages as: "Gotta Have 2 Tickets or I'll Die." Or, "Who's Got 4?"

"Those poor slobs shoulda decided to buy tickets earlier," Okie will smile unto himself.

Oklahoma City: unto himself.

He is especially proud of the next step in his plan.

"I am going to hire the biggest, ugliest, dumbest guy I can find and dress him in a pair of overalls. He'll be standing on the curb in front of my house."

This may be the highlight of the entire day for Okie.

"Hullo," the big guy will say. "My name is Big Tex. Welcome."

Mr. O'Dell will at last be in his own living room. He will turn on the TV. Fortunately, he will have a sun lamp atop the telly, shining directly into his face. In addition to the awful heat, it will be nearly impossible to see the picture. But he will squint and sweat and try to see the first half.

At halftime he will leave for the "concession stand."

There is a small grocery about eight blocks from Mr. O'Dell's house. He will walk to it.

"Gimmie a beer," he will say. "That will be 35 cents, sir," the pleasant clerk will say.

Mr. O'Dell will not put up with this sort of treatment. "In the first place," he will tell the fellow, "I insist on paying 75 cents. And don't smile and say 'sir' to me either."

After walking back to the house — where the bathroom will have been locked and the key thrown away — Okie will watch the second half beneath the sun lamp.

Finally, the game will end. Okie O'Dell says he will stretch out on his divan and get some much-needed rest. He says he will have a wonderful time.

"But," he says, "I sure feel sorry for those clowns who did the same thing I did and now find themselves 220 miles down the road."

Giants' Post To Altobelli

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Joe Altobelli, a highly successful minor league manager, was named Thursday to succeed Bill Rigney as field boss of the San Francisco Giants.

Altobelli has managed the Rochester Red Wings of the Class AAA International League to three first-place finishes in the past five years. This year's Red Wings team finished in first place by 6½ games.

Altobelli has won four pennants, three manager-of-the-year awards and has finished below .500 only twice in his managerial career.

Rigney had agreed to return to managing for only one season as a favor to the Giants' new owner, Bob Lurie, a longtime friend. Lurie indicated that Rigney will accept an unspecified, part-time position with the National League club, which probably will include scouting and public relations work.

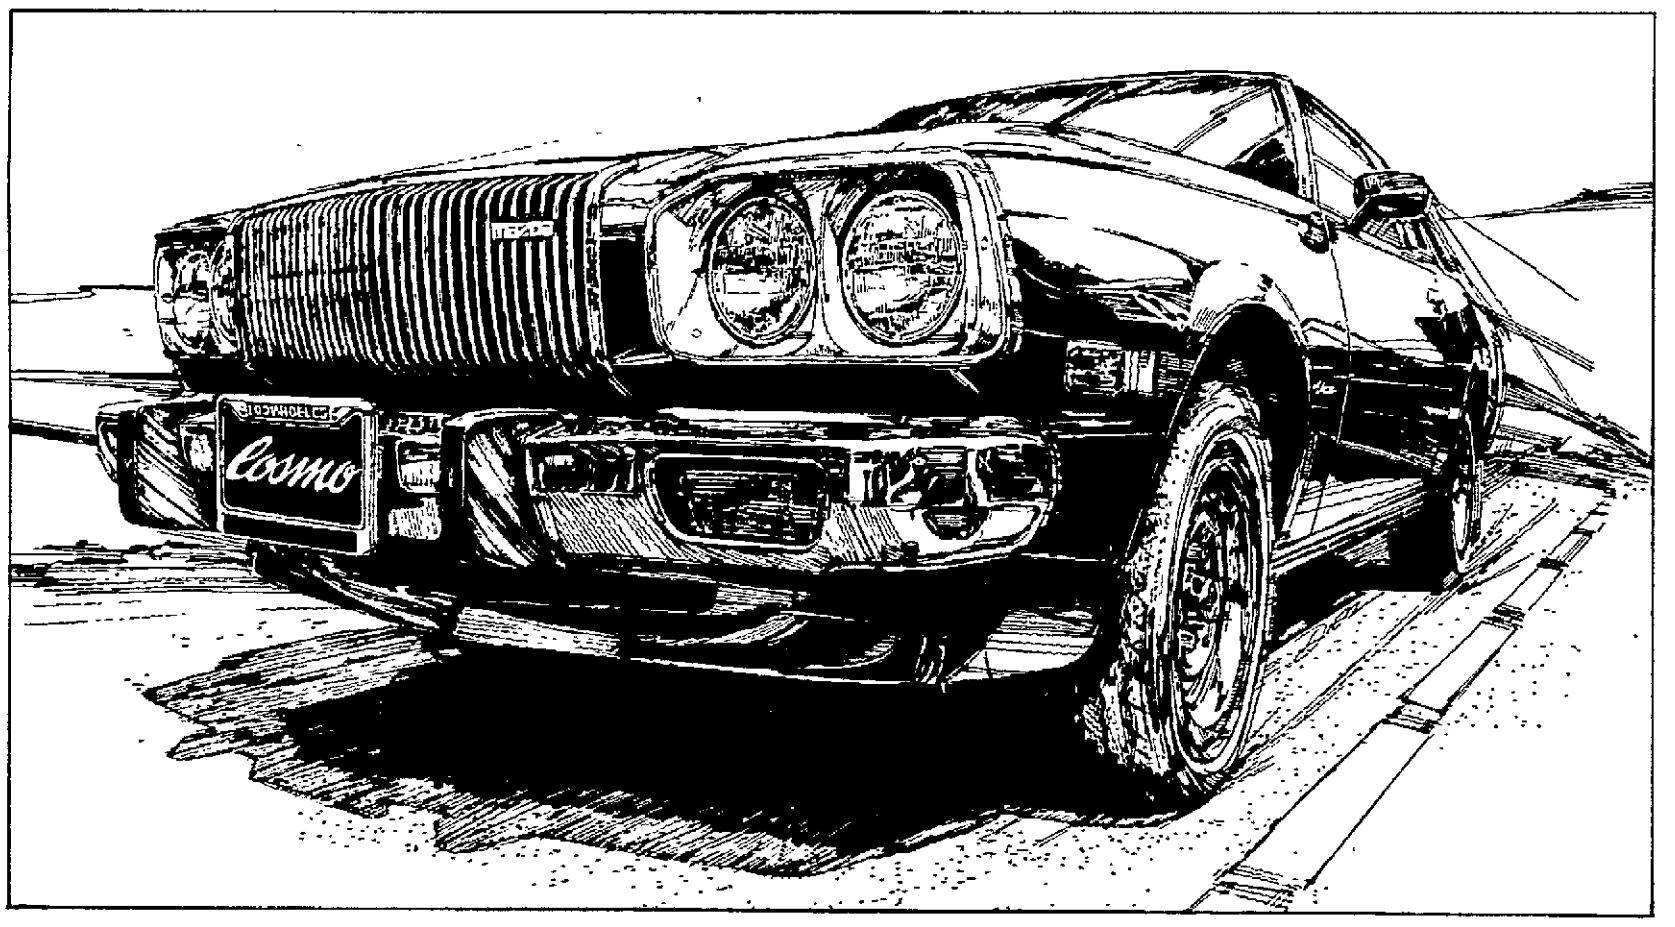
"Cosmo blew their doors off."

Road Test Magazine—October, 1976



That's what Road Test said after a straight-line speed test of five "exotic super coupes" on the back straight at Riverside Raceway.

"Far and away the best powerplant"

Road Test, reporting on their no-holds-barred comparison of overall performance also said that our second generation rotary engine..."was far and away the best powerplant...it had the most power...was fastest on the straight...made the least noise and vibration...to us that means the best engine."

Backed by the world's longest warranty!

Road Test believes in our engine. And we stand behind it longer than anyone. Mazda warrants that the engine block and internal parts will be free of defects with normal use and prescribed maintenance for five years or 75,000 miles, whichever comes first or Mazda will fix it free. Shah's Sister Visits Kenyatta

Nairobi (UPI) — President Jomo Kenyatta received Princess Shams Pahlavi, sister of the Shah of Iran, during her four-day visit to Kenya, officials said.

The meeting took place in Nakuru, 80 miles northwest of the capital, where the president was on a working visit.

Governors Urged To Pool Energy Efforts

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) — Ten Western governors were urged Thursday to pool their energies in opposing federal deregulation of new natural gas production and favoring a comprehensive federal energy policy.

The recommendations were made during a meeting of the Western Governors' Regional Energy Policy Office board of directors. The board is made up of the governors of Arizona, Colorado, North and South Dakoka, Nebraska, New Mexico, Nevada, Montana, Utah and Wyoming.

The call for a regional position opposing deregulation of new natural gas production and elimination of the Federal Power Commisson's multilevel natural gas pricing system came from Cameron Graham, representing New Mexico Gov. Jerry Apodaca.

Montana Gov. Thomas Judge issued the call for a "realistic and attainable" federal energy policy, which he said "must also reflect cooperation with the states to assure consideration of their rights and responsibility to protect and maintain the health, safety and welfare of our citizenry."

The meeting also included a report of accomplishments of the 15-month-old regional energy policy group by its staff director, former North Dakota Gov. William Guy.

Graham told the six governors and four representatives of other governors that proposals for federal deregulation of new natural gas supplies (production after January 1975) would precipitate a crisis that would eliminate use of natural gas in states like New Mexico and force them "back to burning wood."

He said thet deregulation would send prices skyrocketing to a point that the average household's natural gas bill could hit $800 a month and consequently halt consumption.

Graham said the FPC's price "tiering," which now has four levels, hasn't achieved its goal of increasing supplies nationwide. He said it has led only to disparities in supplies and demands — hurting intrastate consumption in producing states and, to a lesser degree, damaging the interstate market.

He said deregulation of "old" gas would bring about somewhat higher but equalized prices which most states could live with. "If gas has a value, it has a value, and regulated or deregulated, it would be the same everywhere," he said.

Judge said the mountain and plains states should continue pushing for stronger regional and federal energy policies since those states are being "called upon to play an expanding role in achieving a better balance between energy supply and need."

He asked the governors' group to push harder for federal strip-mining laws.

"A reiteration of our Western views on energy issues is critical, not only because of the role energy development will play in molding the future of our individual states, but, perhaps even more important, because of the increasing role we feel our states must assume in the changing national situation," he said.

Judge said although the governors' group's study of a possible regional energy organization is not completed, he believes such an organization is essential.

"The area of energy is of such extreme importance to our states, our region and the nation, that it cannot be ignored. The problems have not and will not solve themselves — they will not confine themselves to the boundaries of individual states, nor can we depend on the federal government to tend to our interests," Judge said.

Guy's report claimed success by the governors for the initiation of a regional energy policy, stronger federal strip-mining regulation, greater willingness by the secretary of interior to include states in federal resource programs, and influencing federal synthetic fuel and energy research programs.

Ground Broken For Two Federal Housing Projects

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

The dirt was flying Thursday in both Beatrice and Fairbury as both communities broke ground for low-income housing projects for the elderly.

With double-barreled ceremonies in the towns only 90 minutes apart, Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb, was pushed to make it to both But he managed, joining local dignitaries at the dual spades.

The projects were yoked through having the same developer, George Thomas of Omaha. He also attended both ceremonies

The Beatrice groundbreaking had the added significance of being that town's first venture into federal housing Fairbury has had a 60-unit high-rise complex, Parkview Manor, since 1966.

Thone, speaking briefly, said he was particularly gratified that the projects represent an improved public attitude toward the elderly.

"A lot of senior citizens shouldn't be in nursing homes at all," said the congressman. "They are there only because there is nowhere else to go."

Both towns' mayors, Bob Sargent of Beatrice and Dr. C B Schwab of Fairbury, noted that the housing had been long awaited Red tape and changes in regulations by Housing and Urban Development accounted for several delays.

Sargent added that he was especially pleased that no local funds are involved and that the properties will go on the tax rolls.

The Beatrice development, named Carstens Gardens after former State Sen. Fred Carstens, will have 50 four-room units each covering 560 square feet. There will be 30 like-sized units in the Fairbury project to be known as Fairbury Gardens

Target date for completion of both developments is one year, according to Thomas. In both cities federal funds will subsidize rent payments for occupants, the amount depending upon individual incomes.

Respective chairmen of the towns' housing authorities are Mrs. Marie Bauer of Beatrice and Richard Fry of Fairbury. Former chairman Don Bakewell of Fairbury participated in Fry's absence
